Presidential Campaign A Communication Perspective:

Presidential Campaign Communication Craig Allen Smith, 2010-03-15 Major textbook introduction to the ways that the people of the US use the process of human communication to select their Presidents Looks at the function and effects of talk about American presidential politics in everyday life Communication in Political Campaigns William L. Benoit, 2007 This book offers a comprehensive guide to political campaign communication using functional theory as a framework An authoritative account packed with real life examples from campaigns across the globe the book examines all of the important variables in political campaign communication Considering campaign media from television spots and debates to candidate webpages and direct mail advertising it looks closely at news coverage of campaigns and examines the sources of campaign messages the various ways of responding to scandal the process of voter decision making and the ways in which context affects a political campaign Chapters consider a full range of races from presidential to congressional to gubernatorial and look at political campaigns in the United States and many other countries including France Israel South Korea and Taiwan Communication in Political Campaigns introduces readers to both theory and research on the topic and is an ideal text for courses on political campaigns Presidential Campaigning in the Internet Age Jennifer Stromer-Galley, 2019 As the plugged in presidential campaign has arguably reached maturity Presidential Campaigning in the Internet Age challenges popular claims about the democratizing effect of Digital Communication Technologies DCTs Analyzing campaign strategies structures and tactics from the past six presidential election cycles Stromer Galley reveals how for all their vaunted inclusivity and tantalizing promise of increased two way communication between candidates and the individuals who support them DCTs have done little to change the fundamental dynamics of campaigns The expansion of new technologies has presented candidates with greater opportunities to micro target potential voters cheaper and easier ways to raise money and faster and more innovative ways to respond to opponents The need for communication control and management however has made campaigns slow and loathe to experiment with truly interactive internet communication technologies Citizen involvement in the campaign historically has been and as this book shows continues to be a means to an end winning the election for the candidate For all the proliferation of apps to download polls to click videos to watch and messages to forward the decidedly undemocratic view of controlled interactivity is how most campaigns continue to operate In the fully revised second edition Presidential Campaigning in the Internet Age examines election cycles from 1996 when the World Wide Web was first used for presidential campaigning through 2016 when campaigns had the full power of advertising on social media sites As the book charts changes in internet communication technologies it shows how even as campaigns have moved from a mass mediated to a networked paradigm the possibilities these shifts in interactivity seem to promise for citizen input and empowerment remain farther than a click away The Change Election David Magleby, 2011 A thorough assessment of how the 2008 elections were financed and conducted Television and Politics in Evolving European Democracies

Lynda Lee Kaid,1999 Throughout the world television has become an important part of the way in which political candidates and parties present their messages to voters during election campaigns This is particularly true in campaigns at the national level where voters have little personal contact with candidates and must rely on experiencing candidates through the media Despite the importance of the media for voter government interaction however many new reform governments in the post communist era in Eastern European countries failed to appreciate the demands of creating workable new media systems
