Sports Nutrition Mark Kern, 2019-12 The landscape of sports nutrition is dramatically altering as those in search of optimal performance are moving the field from haphazard alchemy to exact science. Currently thousands of products from ancient herbs and old standards to hormone extractions and test tube concoctions compete for a place at the training table of both professional and amateur competitors as well as those non athletes seeking some potent elixir of youth. Unfortunately getting straight and genuinely relevant information on these products can be a time consuming and frustrating challenge. The CRC Desk Reference on Sports Nutrition following in the tradition of authoritative CRC references will place in your hands the most comprehensive desk reference available on sports nutrition products. Intelligently organized each entry depending upon its prominence and importance is followed either by a definition paragraph essay composition article or feature article. Many of the more complex entries are supported with figures or tables. While the authors have adhered to the principles of scientific discipline they have also taken the effort to make the text highly accessible to anyone with an interest in sports nutrition. Extremely relevant the listings include important issues regarding exercise metabolism and performance recent products both legal and illegal as well as common dietary supplements and traditional herbs. Recent events make it clear that it is becoming more and more challenging for practitioners to adhere to the Hippocratic caveat of do no harm as supplements become more potent and potentially more dangerous. With its desk reference on sports nutrition CRC has taken the lead in helping to meet that challenge. Gastrointestinal and Liver Disease Nutrition Desk Reference Gerard E. Mullin, Laura E. Matarese, Melissa Palmer, 2011-09-12 While the gastrointestinal tract ingests digests and absorbs nutrients the liver transforms nutrients synthesizes plasma proteins and detoxifies bacteria and toxins absorbed from the gut. It is therefore not surprising that gastrointestinal and hepatic diseases have a major impact on the nutritional state of the individual. Integrating nutrition and the gastrointestinal system the Gastrointestinal and Liver Disease Nutrition Desk Reference brings together experts in the field of nutrition gastroenterology and hepatology to offer dietary nutritional and natural therapies for gastrointestinal and hepatic ailments in order to improve overall health. Providing a review of the digestive tract liver and core concepts this important reference presents the nutritional consequences and considerations of digestive disorders. Contributors examine the role of nutrition in gastrointestinal and liver disease including alcoholic and nonalcoholic liver disease viral hepatitis cirrhosis malabsorption colorectal disease transplantation pancreatitis and inflammatory bowel disease. Of special interest to the practitioner are chapters on food allergy and intolerance the effects of medicinal plants and the role of fiber in the gastrointestinal tract. The reference also addresses the challenges of managing nutritional issues for hospitalized patients and covers eating disorders and ethical issues. Other key topics include Obesity Clinical applications of probiotics The impact of micronutrient deficiencies Genomic applications for gastrointestinal care Drug drug and drug nutrient interactions.

Deckelbaum,2001-03-06 Nutrition has been recognized as a major determinant of health for centuries Traditionally nutritional sciences have primarily targeted the prevention of diseases resulting from clinical deficiencies of essential nutrients such as scurvy and rickets Contemporary nutritional research has focused on the prevention of major diseases of Western civilization particularly cardiovascular disease and cancer as well as promoting maternal and child health and healthy aging Heart disease and cancer which were rare in most developing countries several decades ago are increasing dramatically in these countries in parallel with economic development and dietary transitions decreases in infectious diseases and increasing sedentary lifestyle and obesity Substantial evidence indicates major chronic diseases such as coronary heart disease type 2 diabetes and some cancers are largely preventable by relatively simple diet and lifestyle modifications Despite the great potential of nutrition in preventing diseases and improving health nutrition is not routinely emphasized in the education and training of physicians and other health care professionals This has resulted in inadequate nutritional knowledge and lack of skills in providing dietary counseling among many health care professionals Further more in the past decade the public's access to nutritional information has been increasing rapidly particularly through the Internet There are now hundreds of websites providing a wide range of nutritional information and selling numerous dietary products Because of the explosion in nutritional information the public's demand for nutritional advice has been increasing rapidly and will continue to rise
