Art and the Creative Consciousness Graham Collier, 1972 Here is an excerpt If you like where Collier goes with this you'll like the rest of the book I believe we make a mistake if we think that modern man is a rational creature While it is a mark of primitive man to respond directly to the non logical and less rationally defensible images projected by the psyche similar primitive or elemental responses lurk behind the civilized faced of which we are so proud For example we might be somewhat amused by the cave dweller's belief that because he possessed the image of an animal he had gained some power capable of controlling the creature's life But do we not believe something of the sort when we cherish the photograph of someone important to us and think carefully as to where it should be placed where is the place we can contemplate it the most effectively Can we honestly say that in possessing this image of a person we do not feel that some intangible link exists between us and them And could we willfully and with passion deface the photograph without the irrational thought overtaking us that we had done some harm to the relationship and to the person concerned customer review Amazon.com
