The Coupling Convention : Sex, Text, and Tradition in Black

Women's Fiction Ann duCille Associate Professor of English and African American Studies Wesleyan University,1993-10-19 What does the tradition of marriage mean for people who have historically been deprived of its legal status Generally thought of as a convention of the white middle class the marriage plot has received little attention from critics of African American literature In this study Ann duCille uses texts such as Nella Larsen s Quicksand 1928 and Zora Neale Hurston s Their Eyes Were Watching God 1937 to demonstrate that the African American novel like its European and Anglo American counterparts has developed around the marriage plot what she calls the coupling convention Exploring the relationship between racial ideology and literary and social conventions duCille uses the coupling convention to trace the historical development of the African American women s novel She demonstrates the ways in which black women appropriated this novelistic device as a means of expressing and reclaiming their own identity More than just a study of the marriage tradition in black women s fiction however The Coupling Convention takes up and takes on many different meanings of tradition It challenges the notion of a single black literary tradition or of a single black feminist literary canon grounded in specifically black female language and experience as it explores the ways in which white and black male and female mainstream and marginalized traditions and canons have influenced and cross fertilized each other Much more than a period study The Coupling Convention spans the period from 1853 to 1948 addressing the vital questions of gender subjectivity race and the canon that inform literary study today In this original work duCille offers a new paradigm for reading black women s fiction

The Oxford Handbook of the Literature of the U.S. South Fred Hobson,Barbara Ladd,2016 The Oxford Handbook of the Literature of the U S South brings together contemporary views of the literature of the region in a series of chapters employing critical tools not traditionally used in approaching Southern literature. It assumes ideas of the South global multicultural plural more Souths than South that would not have been embraced two or three decades ago and it similarly expands the idea of literature itself. Representative of the current range of activity in the field of Southern literary studies, it challenges earlier views of antebellum Southern literature as well as in its discussions of twentieth century writing questions the assumption that the Southern Renaissance of the 1920s, 1930s and 1940s was the supreme epoch of Southern expression that writing to which all that had come before had led and by which all that came afterward was judged. As well as canonical Southern writers, it examines Native American literature, Latina/o literature, Asian American as well as African American literatures, Caribbean studies, sexuality studies, the relationship of literature to film and a number of other topics which are relatively new to the field.

Racial Discourse and Cosmopolitanism in Twentieth-Century African American Writing Tania Friedel, 2010-06-21. This book engages cosmopolitanism, a critical mode which moves beyond cultural pluralism by simultaneously privileging difference and commonality in order to examine its particular deployment in the work of several African American writers. Deeply influenced and inspired by W. E. B. Du Bois, the writers closely examined in this study—Jean Toomer, Jessie Fauset, Langston Hughes, and Albert Murray—have advanced cosmopolitanism to meet its own theoretical principals in the contested arena of racial discourse while remaining integral figures in a larger tradition of cosmopolitan thought. Rather than become mired in fixed categorical distinctions, their cosmopolitan perspective values the pluralist belief in the distinctiveness of different cultural groups while allowing for the possibility of inter-ethnic subjectivities, intercultural affiliations, and change in any given mode of identification. This study advances cosmopolitanism as a useful model for like-minded critics and intellectuals today who struggle with contemporary debates regarding multiculturalism and universalism in a rapidly yet unevenly globalizing world.

Chaotic Justice John Ernest, 2009-11-15. What is African American about African American literature? Why identify it as a distinct tradition? John Ernest contends that too often scholars have relied on naive concepts of race, superficial conceptions of African American history, and the marginalization of important strains of black scholarship. With this book, he creates a new and just retelling of African American literary history that neither ignores nor transcends racial history. Ernest revisits the work of nineteenth-century writers and activists such as Henry Box Brown, Frederick Douglass, Harriet Wilson, William Wells Brown, and Sojourner Truth.

demonstrating that their concepts of justice were far more radical than those imagined by most white sympathizers He sheds light on the process of reading publishing studying and historicizing this work during the twentieth century Looking ahead to the future of the field Ernest offers new principles of justice that grant fragmented histories partial recoveries and still unprinted texts the same value as canonized works His proposal is both a historically informed critique of the field and an invigorating challenge to present and future scholars

Love American Style Kimberly Freeman,2004-03-01 A popular subject in sociology and cultural studies divorce has until recently been overlooked by literary critics Spanning nearly a century during which the divorce rate skyrocketed Love American Style traces the treatment of divorce in the American novel This book draws upon popular sociological political and architectural history to illustrate how divorce reflects conflicting ideologies and notions of American identity Focusing primarily on work by William Dean Howells Edith Wharton Mary McCarthy and John Updike Kimberly Freeman delineates a system of tropes particular to divorce in American novels such as the association of divorce with the West and modernity the dismantling of the home and the disruption of the boundary between the public and the private These tropes suggest a literary tradition of love marriage and divorce that is central to twentieth century American fiction Offering an explanation for both the treatment of divorce in the American novel as well as its predominance in American culture this book should appeal to scholars of American literature and popular culture or anyone interested in how divorce has become so American
