Krista was in the kitchen when her two daughters—both tall and slim, with long, straight brown hair like their mother's—descended the stairs from the second floor of their condo, each dressed in exercise clothes and carrying a rolled mat under her arm.

"Mom, you ready to go?" said her younger daughter, Marianne.

"I can't go today. I've got a repairman coming to fix the dryer," Krista replied, leaning against the machine in its alcove in the kitchen.

Couplings A Of Stories:

Primo Levi's Narratives of Embodiment Charlotte Ross, 2010-09-13 This innovative reading of Primo Levi's work offers the first sustained analysis in English of his representations of bodies and embodiment. Discussion spans the range of Levi's works from testimony to journalism from essays to science fiction stories identifying and tracing multiple narratives of embodiment and disembodiment across his oeuvre. These narratives range from the abject disembodied condition of prisoners in Auschwitz to posthuman or cyborg individuals whose bodies merge with technological devices. Levi's representations of bodies are explored in relation to theories of embodiment and posthumanism bringing his work into new dialogue with critical discourses on these issues. Taking inspiration from Levi's definition of the human being as a constructor of containers as well as from the recurring references to both material and metaphorical containing structures in his work, the book suggests that for Levi embodiment involves constant negotiations of containment. He depicts the complex relationships between physical and social bodies, the material and the immaterial self, the conscious and unconscious subject, the organic and the technologically enhanced body, engaging with evolving understandings of the boundaries of the body, the self and the human.

The Coupling Convention : Sex, Text, and Tradition in Black Women's Fiction Ann duCille, Associate Professor of English and African American Studies, Wesleyan University, 1993-10-19 What does the tradition of marriage mean for people who have historically been deprived of its legal status? Generally thought of as a convention of the white middle class, the marriage plot has received little attention from critics of African American literature. In this study, Ann duCille uses texts such as Nella Larsen's Quicksand (1928) and Zora Neale Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God (1937) to demonstrate that the African American novel like its European and Anglo American counterparts has developed around the marriage plot, what she calls the coupling convention. Exploring the relationship between racial ideology and literary and social conventions, duCille uses the coupling convention to trace the historical development of the African American women's novel. She demonstrates the ways in which black women appropriated this novelistic device as a means of expressing and reclaiming their own identity. More than just a study of the marriage tradition in black women's fiction, however, The Coupling Convention takes up and takes on many different meanings of tradition. It challenges the notion of a single black literary tradition or of a single black feminist literary canon grounded in specifically black female language and experience as it explores the ways in which white and black male and female mainstream and marginalized traditions and canons have influenced and cross-fertilized each other. Much more than a period study, The Coupling Convention spans the period from 1853 to 1948, addressing the vital questions of gender, subjectivity, race, and the canon that inform literary study today. In this original work, duCille offers a new paradigm for
