AIVF Guide to International Film and Video Festivals Kathryn Bowser, 1988 Unexpected Alliances Young-a Park, 2014-11-05 Since 1999 South Korean films have dominated roughly 40 to 60 percent of the Korean domestic box office matching or even surpassing Hollywood films in popularity Why is this and how did it come about In Unexpected Alliances Young-a Park seeks to answer these questions by exploring the cultural and institutional roots of the Korean film industry's phenomenal success in the context of Korea's political transition in the late 1990s and early 2000s The book investigates the unprecedented interplay between independent filmmakers the state and the mainstream film industry under the post authoritarian administrations of Kim Dae Jung 1998 2003 and Roh Moo Hyun 2003 2008 and shows how these alliances were critical in the making of today's Korean film industry During South Korea's post authoritarian reform era independent filmmakers with activist backgrounds were able to mobilize and transform themselves into important players in state cultural institutions and in negotiations with the purveyors of capital Instead of simply labeling the alliances selling out or co-optation this book explores the new spaces institutions and conversations which emerged and shows how independent filmmakers played a key role in national protests against trade liberalization actively contributing to the creation of the very idea of a Korean national cinema worthy of protection
