Methodists and the Crucible of Race, 1930-1975 Peter C. Murray, 2004 In Methodists and the Crucible of Race 1930-1975 Peter C. Murray contributes to the history of American Christianity and the Civil Rights movement by examining a national institution the Methodist Church after 1968 the United Methodist Church and how it dealt with the racial conflict centered in the South Murray begins his study by tracing American Methodism from its beginnings to the secession of many African Americans from the church and the establishment of separate northern and southern denominations in the nineteenth century He then details the reconciliation and compromise of many of these segments in 1939 that led to the unification of the church This compromise created the racially segregated church that Methodists struggled to eliminate over the next thirty years During the Civil Rights movement American churches confronted issues of racism that they had previously ignored No church experienced this confrontation more sharply than the Methodist Church When Methodists reunited their northern and southern halves in 1939 their new church constitution created a segregated church structure that posed significant issues for Methodists during the Civil Rights movement Of the six jurisdictional conferences that made up the Methodist Church only one was not based on a geographic region the Central Jurisdiction a separate conference for all Negro annual conferences This Jim Crow arrangement humiliated African American Methodists and embarrassed their liberal white allies within the church The Supreme Court's Brown v Board of Education decision awakened many white Methodists from their complacent belief that the church could conform to the norms of the South without consequences among its national membership Murray places the struggle of the Methodist Church within the broader context of the history of race relations in the United States He shows how the effort to destroy the barriers in the church were mirrored in the work being done by society to end segregation Immensely readable and free of jargon Methodists and the Crucible of Race 1930-1975 will be of interest to a broad audience including those interested in the Civil Rights movement and American church history from acclaimed contemporary Woolf scholars focusing on urban issues These include addressing the ethical and political implications of Virginia Woolf's work a move that suggests new insights into Woolf as a real world social critic Hindu Mahasabha in Colonial North India, 1915-1930 Prabhu Bapu, 2013 Hindu nationalism has emerged as a political ideology represented by the Hindu Mahasabha This book explores the campaign for Hindu unity and organisation in the context of the Hindu Muslim conflict in colonial north India in the early twentieth century It argues that India's partition in 1947 was a result of the campaign and politics of the Hindu rightwing rather than the Islamist politics of the Muslim League alone The book explains that the Mahasabha articulated Hindu nationalist ideology as a means of constructing a distinct Hindu political identity and unity among the Hindus in conflict with the Muslims in the country It looks at the Mahasabha's ambivalence with the Indian National Congress due to an extreme ideological opposition and goes on to argue that the Mahasabha had its ideological focus on an anti Muslim antagonism rather than the anti British struggle for India's independence adding to the difficulties in the negotiations on Hindu Muslim representation in the country The book suggests that the Mahasabha had a limited class and regional base and was unable to generate much in the way of a mass movement of its own but developed a quasi military wing besides its involvement in a number of popular campaigns Bridging the gap in Indian historiography by focusing on the development and evolution of Hindu nationalism in its formative period this book is a useful study for students and scholars of Asian Studies and Political History 1930's Omnibus Contains Sittaford Mystery AGATHA CHRISTIE., Catalog of Copyright Entries.
