Hudson,Bridget Connelly,Doris Earnshaw,2005 Even during the late 1960s academia remained largely the province of men That began to change at the University of California at Berkeley in 1969 when Marsha Hudson posted notices across campus proposing a feminist literary salon The purpose was to discuss women s literature a few female writers received passing notice in the classroom but the multitude was either ignored or forgotten The informal gatherings continued for years growing into an activist movement that established the first Women s Studies major at Berkeley helped produce the first major anthologies of women s poetry and fought for equality and recognition in every corner of the education system They risked their academic futures in the process but the efforts of those women and others helped change the face and shape of higher learning forever These 16 essays were written by members of Marsha s Salon and its successors the Comparative Literature Women s Caucus a group of female graduate students at UC Berkeley organized in 1969 by Marsha Hudson The group met for years and helped lead the charge to bring sexual equality to all facets of education These annotated essays recount the atmosphere of the time that made change necessary the upheaval brought about by the feminist revolution in education the direction that the movement took and the current state of feminist learning in academia An appendix features period letters and documents from group members regarding the need for changes at Berkeley as well as statistical information about women s studies and related subjects      International Who's Who in Poetry 2004 Europa

Register ,1817      Transnationalism in Southern African Literature Stefan Helgesson,2008-08-18 Considering the growing interest in South African Literature at the moment this study looks at both the Anglophone literature of South Africa and the lusophone literature of Angola and Mozambique Stefan Helgesson suggests that the prevalence of colonial languages such as English and Portuguese in anticolonial or postcolonial African Literature is primarily an effect of the print network Helgesson aims to demystify the authority of English and Portuguese by stressing the materiality of the print medium and emphasising the strong transnational and transcontinental vectors of southern African literature after the Second World War
