Mitchell S. McKinney, 2005 Half of our eligible citizens fail to cast a presidential ballot and many more than half routinely ignore state and local elections Does this phenomenon point to a crisis of democracy or does such behavior simply reflect indifference or even contentment among the public Should we be alarmed that so many of our citizens seem disinterested and unwilling to participate in the various activities and forms of association that constitute civic life If we are concerned by such matters what might be done to reengage those who are seemingly disengaged This book explores these questions and examines the well being of our civic condition at the beginning of the twenty first century Grounded in a communication perspective we view the fundamental nature of a democracy as that of a civic dialogue an ongoing conversation between our elected leaders or political candidates and the citizens they lead or wish to lead Accordingly the studies presented in this volume examine our civic sphere and the electoral process as a communicative interaction between elected officials political candidates the media and citizens      The Mass Media and Latino Politics Federico Subervi-Velez, 2009-03-04 The Latin American population has become a major force in American politics in recent years with expanding influences in local state and national elections The candidates in the 2004 campaign wooed Latino voters by speaking Spanish to Latino audiences and courting Latino groups and PACs Recognizing the rising influence of the Latino population in the United States Federico Subervi Velez has put together this edited volume examining various aspects of the Latino and media landscape including media coverage in English and Spanish language media campaigns and survey research      Notable Speeches in Contemporary Presidential Campaigns Robert V. Friedenberg, 2002-03-30 Though many studies of contemporary campaigns focus on brief political advertisements and the growing impact of technology on contemporary campaigns the definitive statements of most candidates are still made in public addresses Friedenberg examines the first public address made by an American presidential candidate on his own behalf The circumstances giving rise to William Henry Harrison s 1840 address and the themes that he developed in that address are strikingly contemporary serving as an appropriate prelude to the examinations of contemporary political speaking that follow Those examinations focus on notable campaign speeches by John F Kennedy Barry Goldwater Richard Nixon Ronald Reagan Bill and Hillary Clinton and George W Bush Each study examines a key event that foreshadowed the speech studied Each study presents a rhetorical biography of the speaker including a discussion of the speechwriting team and preparation techniques utilized by the speaker Each study presents a thorough study of the campaign context in which the speeches were presented Each also presents a close reading and rhetorical analysis of the speech itself and observations on the impact of the speech Cumulatively Friedenberg s studies help to illustrate how even in today s high tech political environment of 30 second ads and candidate Web sites public speeches continue to play a crucial role in political campaigning Of particular interest to scholars and students involved with political communication and political American campaigning
