remains perhaps the least known of the world's art to the modern audience. Throughout this mass of islands there existed hundreds of cultures, many of them sustained by only a few hundred people. The cultures developed into richly disparate modes with elaborate social systems and highly refined systems of intellectual and religious life. Most striking of all, however, is that these cultures created an extraordinary range of art styles to express and serve their beliefs. The aim of the exhibition, this catalog accompanied, was to highlight objects that were made before or collected at the earliest contact by Westerners and which therefore reflect the most pristine state of the cultures. Many of the works included had never before been published or exhibited.

Arts of the Pacific Islands Anne D'Alleva, 2010. In this comprehensive survey of the art of the Pacific Islands, including the Melanesian, Polynesian, Micronesian, and New Guinean traditions, author Anne D'Alleva explains the significance of these artworks by contextualizing them within each island's unique culture and practices. In the process, D'Alleva examines the biases of both artists and Western viewers, telling an important history of both people and ideas through a detailed analysis of sculpture, paintings, textiles, dance, jewelry, and architecture. As these nations faced alternating periods of isolation, colonization, and contact with each other and the West, their forms of art were drastically altered to incorporate foreign influences and to develop autonomous identities and cultural independence. Therefore, their artistic practices explore the inherent tension between tradition and modernity within these communities. Ranging from the prehistoric period to the modern era and accompanied by a timeline, bibliography, and glossary of terms, this book raises important questions for continued debate and study of the art of the Pacific Rim.

Art of the Pacific James McNeish, D. R. Simmons, 1979. Maori, Polynesian, and Melanesian art in New Zealand museums.

Examines the art forms and practices of particular regions, for example, Maori ancestral carvings and rituals of exchange and warfare in the Solomon Islands. Discusses topics such as maternal symbolism and male cults and also provides a chapter on narrative art and tourism. Includes a bibliography, references, and an index.

Art and Performance in Oceania Barry Craig, Bernie Kernot, Christopher Anderson, 1999-12-01. The Fifth International Symposium of the Pacific Arts Association, titled Art Performance and Society, called for papers in sessions dealing with Production and Performance, Social and Cultural Context, The Record, and the Remainder, and The Mission of Museums. In all, some sixty papers were presented, twenty-four of which have been included in this book. The first two topics elicited several papers that explored the creative process, including the description and analysis of performance and the taxonomy of objects used; the transmission of cultural knowledge; and the identity and work of individual artists. The second two topics provided the opportunity for papers on some significant early museum collectors and collections various methods of documenting cultural material such as photography how cultural material has been and can be exhibited and the role of museums and cultural centers in Pacific Island countries The Pacific Islands Brij V.
