rebelled against traditional conventions embracing a commitment to creative autonomy and personal vision never before witnessed in the United States Paul Lopes calls this the Heroic Age of American Art and identifies two artists Miles Davis and Martin Scorsese as two of its leading icons In this compelling book Lopes tells the story of how a pair of talented and outspoken art rebels defied prevailing conventions to elevate American jazz and film to unimagined critical heights During the Heroic Age of American Art where creative independence and the unrelenting pressures of success were constantly at odds Davis and Scorsese became influential figures with such modern classics as Kind of Blue and Raging Bull Their careers also reflected the conflicting ideals of and contentious debates concerning avant garde and independent art during this period In examining their art and public stories Lopes also shows how their rebellions as artists were intimately linked to their racial and ethnic identities and how both artists adopted hypermasculine ideologies that exposed the problematic intersection of gender with their racial and ethnic identities as iconic art rebels Art Rebels is the essential account of a new breed of artists who left an indelible mark on American culture in the second half of the twentieth century It is an unforgettable portrait of two iconic artists who exemplified the complex interplay of the quest for artistic autonomy and the expression of social identity during the Heroic Age of American Art
