

Retroactive Ancestral Constitution, New Animism and Alter-Native Modernities

Ewa Domanska¹

ABSTRACT

In the article "What is a Historical System?", Hayden White writes about choosing an ideal ancestry that allows societies to create a collective identity by establishing connections to a desired past, peopled by divine or human heroes. He calls this process "retroactive ancestral constitution". I will put this idea in the framework of ecological humanities and recent discussions about treating indigenous ways of knowing as complementary to Western epistemologies. I will refer to "new animism" as discussed by Philippe Descola, Graham Harvey and Eduardo Viveiros de Castro, and relate it to radical thinking and ideas of altermodernity (as conceptualized by Michael Hardt and Antonio Negri). In this context, I will ask, what would happen if a certain group were to choose animal (or other non-human entities such as plants or things) as ancestors rather than human ones? What kind of future could follow from such a choice? I will argue that in the present times of challenges posed by increasing poverty, new mass killings and migrations, as well as ecological destruction, climate change and rapid biotechnological progress, the idea of the choice of a non-human ancestry opens up the possibility of eco-utopias that might contribute to a sustainable future. I will conclude the article with preliminary thoughts about a theory of prospective non-human ancestral constitution.

IN the article "What is a Historical System?", Hayden White writes about establishing an ideal ancestry that allows societies to create a collective identity by constructing connections to a desired past peopled by divine or human heroes. He calls this "a process of ancestral substitution" or "retroactive ancestral constitution". Even if one of the purposes of White's text was to stress differences between biological and historical systems, connecting them is possible too. In the context of recent interest in the biohumanities and in transcending the opposition between culture and nature, White's specific way of inventing tradition might be related to the evolutionary notion of adaptation to a changing social, political and environmental setting. A conscious choice (an idea so dear to his thinking) of constituting a suitable ancestry in times of change (especially critical times like revolutions or reformations) might be seen as a strategy of adaptation and might be related to a drive for survival. Thus choosing a proper ancestry is strategic for the future of the community – and this is why I find the topic of particular importance, not only as an issue for historical theory and an interesting motif in White's work but as a strategy for times marked by increasing violence, poverty and ecological degradation.

In the article, White writes as follows:

¹ This article was written as part of the "Rescue History" project, Master's Program, Foundation for Polish Science, and constitutes a chapter in a book: Affirmative Humanities and Non-Anthropocentric Knowledge of the Past (work in progress.)

Alter Native Modernities Millennial Quartet Public Culture Vol Ii Number I 1999:

Critically Modern Bruce M. Knaft, 2002-09-27 Critically Modern makes a critical intervention in one of the great debates of the moment. It offers a variety of rich and fascinating empirical analyses of modern phenomena from diverse societies and contributes a powerful and largely missing voice to the growing literature on globalization and modernity outside anthropology. Charles Piot In these essays theory and ethnography are presented in ways that make them mutually enriching. The volume should appeal to scholars across the entire range of disciplines that deal with modernity and or globalization. Edward LiPuma Are there multiple ways of being modern in the world today? How do people in various parts of the world become modern in their own distinct ways? Does the current focus on modernity in the social sciences resurrect a series of dichotomies: traditional and modern, the West and the Rest, developed and undeveloped, that social theorists have sought to move beyond in recent years? Or do inflections of modernity capture key features of ideology and influence in the contemporary world? Combining rich ethnographic analysis with incisive theoretical critiques, this timely volume is certain to make an important mark in anthropology and in all related fields in which modernity is a central problematic. Contributors: Donald L. Donham, Robert J. Foster, Jonathan Friedman, Ivan Karp, John D. Kelly, Bruce M. Knaft, Lisa B. Rofel, Debra A. Spitulnik, Michel Rolph Trouillot and Holly Wardlow. Handbook of Landscape Archaeology Bruno David, Julian Thomas, 2016-06-03 Over 80 archaeologists from four continents create a benchmark volume of the ideas and practices of landscape archaeology, covering the theoretical and the practical, the research and conservation, and encasing the term in a global framework. China Urban Nancy N. Chen, 2001-03-21 Ethnographies of urban China informed by current theoretical concerns. Sociology of South Asia Smitha Radhakrishnan, Gowri Vijayakumar, 2022-06-02 This edited volume moves the study of South Asia to the center of sociological analysis, bringing together recent scholarship across sites in India, Sri Lanka, Nepal, and Pakistan, as well as in Ethiopia and the USA. This book situates the project of decolonizing the discipline within a rich transnational intellectual legacy and reveals how South Asia offers a uniquely generative site from which to rethink sociological practice. Recognizing local and global influences at their specific sites, the contributing authors highlight the historical ravages of colonialism and imperialism, modernization projects of the postcolonial era, and the kaleidoscopic ways in which gender, caste, class, and sexuality structure everyday life under neoliberalism today. The sociology of South Asia centers the voices and experiences of those marginalized by local and global systems of power in order to produce knowledge that advances interconnected projects of liberation. China Imagined Gregory B. Lee, 2018 If China, as Lee argues, is a product of Westernization, then the West is itself in the process of becoming China. Alter/native Modernities Dilip Parameshwar Gaonkar, 1999 To think in terms of alternative modernities is to admit that modernity is inescapable and to desist from speculations about modernity's end. Modernity today is global and multiple and no longer has a Western governing center to accompany it. The essays in this collection therefore approach the dilemmas of modernity from transnational and transcultural perspectives The idea of alternative modernities holds that modernity always unfolds within specific cultures or civilizations and that different starting points of the transition to modernity lead to different outcomes Without abandoning the Western discourse on the subject the contributors to this volume write from the standpoint that modernity is in truth a richly multiplicitous concept Believing that the language and lessons of Western modernity must be submitted to comparative study of its global receptions they focus on such sites as China Russia India Trinidad and Mexico Other essays treat more theoretical aspects of modernity such as its self understanding and the potential reconcilability of cosmopolitanism and diversity Description from www.dukeupress.edu Feb 15 2012 Millennial Capitalism and the
