eastern part of the continent is rolling and hilly for about one hundred and fifty miles back from the coast West of this region lies the country of plains the first part of which is a belt of prairie lands three hundred miles wide where there are fine sheep and cattle ranches and wheat and fruit farms Here too is the only real river system of Australia the Murray Darling Near the western border of the plains is the salt Lake Eyre sunk in a depression below sea level Beyond Lake Eyre extending almost across the continent to within three hundred miles of the west coast and to within about the same distance from the ocean on the north and south is the Great Desert This has an estimated area of eight hundred thousand square miles or about one fourth of all Australia Except in the southwest corner where gold is mined there are said to be less than one thousand white people in this arid waste The air is so dry that one s fingernails become as brittle as glass screws come out of boxes and lead drops out of pencils I am told there are six year old children living in this region who have never seen a drop of rain Australia is a land of strange things as well as big ones queer plants queer animals and aborigines who are the most backward members of the human race There are lilies that reach the height of a three story house trees that grow grass and other trees whose trunks bulge out like bottles In the dense bush are mighty eucalyptus trees rising two hundred feet high They shed their bark instead of their foliage and the leaves are attached to the stems obliquely instead of horizontally There are towering tree ferns such as disappeared from the rest of the earth before the Coal Age and are now seen elsewhere only in the fossilized remains of prehistoric times Two thirds of the animals of Australia like its famous kangaroo are marsupials that is the females have pouches in which they carry their young Except for the opossum and the opossum rat of Patagonia marsupials occur nowhere else Stranger than the kangaroo stranger even than Australia s wingless bird the emu is the platypus which is found only on this island continent It has a bill like a duck s fur like a seal s and a pouch like that of a kangaroo It is equally at home on the land and in the water It lays eggs yet it is a mammal though a mammal it has no teats but nourishes its young by means of milk that exudes through pores into its pouch As for the natives when William Dampier the first Englishman to land on the shores of Australia came here in 1699 he described the aborigines as the miserablest people in the world with the unpleasantest looks and the worst features of any people I ever saw Setting aside their human shape they differ little from brutes Whence these natives came and how long they had been on their island continent none knows All agree however that the bushman or blackfellow as he is generally called is the lowest form of man Throughout uncounted years he has made no progress He is without history and without tradition Contact with civilization kills him The aborigines of Australia are a dying race numbering now a scant fifty thousand
