Animals Stephen R. Kellert, 1983 The basic objectives of this research which involved children in the 2nd 5th 8th and 11th grades were to describe children s uses and perceptions of animals and to discern possible developmental stages in the evolution of attitudes toward animals Personal interviews were conducted with 267 children from 16 public schools randomly selected from urban small city suburban and rural areas of the state of Connecticut Three major developmental stages in the evolution of children s perceptions of animals were found The first stage occurring from the 2nd to 5th grade was characterized by a dramatic increase in emotional concern and general affection for animals Since very young children were the most exploitative harsh and unfeeling of all children in their attitudes toward animals environmental programs should focus on the affective realm The transition from fifth to eighth grades witnessed the second major developmental stage a major expansion in children s intellectual and cognitive understandings of animals Therefore factual learning should be emphasized at this stage The third developmental stage occurred between 8th and 11th grades during which time children s ethical concern for the welfare and kind treatment of animals increased dramatically This stage offers the best opportunity for teaching about ethical relationships to animals and the concepts of ecology and wildlife management RM Fish and Wildlife News U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 2008 General Technical Report NE , 1980 Proceedings of the 2003
