American Indians and the Rhetoric of Removal and Allotment Jason Edward Black, 2015-02-10 Jason Edward Black examines the ways the US government s rhetoric and American Indian responses contributed to the policies of Native US relations throughout the nineteenth century s removal and allotment eras Black shows how these discourses together constructed the perception of the US government and of American Indian communities Such interactions though certainly not equal illustrated the hybrid nature of Native US rhetoric in the nineteenth century Both governmental colonizing discourse and indigenous decolonizing discourse shaped arguments constructions of identity and rhetoric in the colonial relationship American Indians and the Rhetoric of Removal and Allotment demonstrates how American Indians decolonized dominant rhetoric through impeding removal and allotment policies By turning around the US government s narrative and inventing their own tactics American Indian communities helped restyle their own identities as well as the government s During the first third of the twentieth century American Indians lobbied for the successful passage of the Indian Citizenship Act of 1924 and the Indian New Deal of 1934 changing the relationship once again In the end Native communities were granted increased rhetorical power through decolonization though the US government retained an undeniable colonial influence through its territorial management of Natives The Indian Citizenship Act and the Indian New Deal as the conclusion of this book indicates are emblematic of the prevalence of the duality of US citizenship that fused American

Indians to the nation yet segregated them on reservations This duality of inclusion and exclusion grew incrementally and persists now as a lasting effect of nineteenth century Native US rhetorical relations Bitter Trail Elmer Kelton, 1984
