Bitter Choices Blue Collar Women In And Out Of Work:

Bitter Choices Ellen Israel Rosen, 1990-03-23 Ellen Israel Rosen presents a compelling portrait of married women who work on New England's assembly lines while they also maintain their homes and marriages. With skill and sympathy she documents the reasons these women work, their experiences on the job, in the union and at home, the sources of their job satisfaction and their management of the double day. The major issue for this segment of the labor force, Rosen suggests, is not whether to work but the availability and quality of jobs. Rosen argues that deindustrialization, plant closings and job displacement confronts blue collar women, factory workers with a bitter choice between work at lower and lower wages or no work at all. Drawing on quantitative and qualitative data from interviews with more than two hundred such women, factory workers, Rosen traces the ways in which women who do unskilled factory work have gained in self-esteem as well as financial stability from holding paid jobs. Throughout, Rosen explores the relationship between public work experiences and private family life. She analyzes the dynamics of two paycheck working class families, clarifies relationships between class and gender and explores the impact of patriarchy and capitalism on working class women. At the same time, Rosen places women's job loss within the broader economic context of global industrial transformations, demonstrating how international capital shifts to cheaper labor in developing countries as well as technological progress are changing the shape of the entire American labor force and are beginning to undermine the material and symbolic gains of the American female factory worker, the promise of market equality and progressive working conditions. This book is a significant contribution to our understanding of women's work and family lives but it is also a valuable look at the consequences of deindustrialization in America for workers, their families and their communities. Women and Work Sonia Carreon, Amy Cassedy, Kathryn Borman, Paula J. Dubeck, 2013-11-26 Focuses on vital contemporary issues. Women in the work force today are still subjected to the glass ceiling, sexual discrimination, income inequality, stereotyping and other obstacles to equal employment and professional advancement. Now a collection of 150 original articles written for this handbook explores the challenges and career blocks that today's women face in the workplace, discuss important contemporary issues and offers a wide range of facts and data on women's employment. Offers insights and information. The Handbook answers hundreds of questions as it illuminates current achievements and obstacles to success for women in the marketplace. Drawing upon a growing body of research in the social and behavioral sciences, the articles provide insights into such issues as the sex segregation of occupations comparable with women in traditionally male occupations, career plans of college women, gender bias in job evaluations and personnel decisions, sexual harassment, the gendered culture of organizations, the effects of maternal employment on children and child care, and more. The articles draw on extensive research and studies on women in the workplace across the U.S. and around the world. A valuable research aid. This handbook presents the reader with a broadly based understanding of women's work experiences and provides a useful set of sources for in-depth research. It is a valuable reference for professors, librarians, researchers, guidance counselors, and students who need reliable up-to-date information. The handbook includes a subject and name index.

Now Hiring Julia Kirk Blackwelder, 1997. In Now Hiring historian Julia Kirk Blackwelder adroitly traces the evolution of the American occupational structure, delineating the main lines of the development of the female work force and its interactions with education, family life, and social convention.

Women Encounter Technology Swasti Mitter, Sheila Rowbotham, 2003-09-02. This collection explores the effects of new technologies on women's employment and on the nature of women's work. The volume is edited by two pre-eminent scholars in the field and contains thirteen articles from leading academics worldwide. The book provides a critique of postmodernism and ecofeminism and demands that new technology is used as a vehicle for gender equality in the developing world.

Calling Home Janet Zandy, 1990. Working-class women are the majority of women in the United States, and yet their work and their culture are rarely visible. Calling Home is an anthology of writings by and about working-class women. Over fifty selections represent the ethnic, racial, and geographic diversity of working-class experience. This is writing grounded in social history, not in the academy. Traditional boundaries of genre and periodization collapse in this collection, which includes reportage, oral histories, speeches, songs, and letters, as well as poetry, stories, and essays. The divisions in this collection, telling stories bearing witness, celebrating solidarity, address the distinction of by or about working-class women and show the connections between individual identity and collective sensibility in a common history of struggle for economic justice The geography of home identity parents sex motherhood the dominance of the job the overlapping of private and public worlds the promise of solidarity and community are a few of the themes of this book Here is a chorus of working class women s voices Sandra Cisneros Barbara Garson Meridel Le Sueur Tillie Olsen Barbara Smith Endesha I M Holland Mother Jones Nellie Wong Agnes Smedley Bobbie Louise Hawkins Sharon Doubiago Carol Tarlen Hazel Hall Margaret Randall Judy Grahn and many others The aesthetic impulse is shaped by class but not limited to one ruling class What connects these writers is a collective consciousness a class which rejects bondage and lays claim to liberation through all the possibilities of language Calling Home is illustrated with family photographs as well as images of working women by professional photographers

Reshaping the Work-Family Debate Joan C. Williams,2012-01-01 The United States has the most family hostile public policy in the developed world Despite what is often reported new mothers don t opt out of work They are pushed out by discriminating and inflexible workplaces Today s workplaces continue to idealize the worker who has someone other than parents caring for their children Conventional wisdom attributes women s decision to leave work to their maternal traits and desires In this thought provoking book Joan Williams shows why that view is misguided and how workplace practice disadvantages men both those who seek to avoid the breadwinner role and those who embrace it as well as women Faced with masculine norms that define the workplace women must play the tomboy or the femme Both paths result in a gender bias that is exacerbated when the two groups end up pitted against each other And although work family issues long have been seen strictly through a gender lens we ignore class at our peril The dysfunctional relationship between the professional managerial class and the white working class must be addressed before real reform can take root Contesting the idea that women need to negotiate better within the family and redefining the notion of success in the workplace Williams reinvigorates the work family debate and offers the first steps to making life manageable for all American families

Making Sweatshops Ellen Israel Rosen,2002-12-03 Making Sweatshops reveals the inexorable movement towards an open trading system the shifting alignments of actors pushing for or opposing openness and most centrally how trade policy promotes the globalization of apparel production filling a gap in our understanding of these dynamics Richard P Appelbaum coauthor of Behind the Label Inequality in the Los Angeles Apparel Industry A detailed examination of the role that trade policy plays in the process of globalization Rosen provides a meticulous historical analysis of the textile apparel industry one of the world s most globalized industries and one of its most hot button issues Stephen Cullenberg coauthor of Transition and Development in India Rosen shows how politics have always shaped the trade agenda from beginning to end and she presents a most compelling case that if trade and the global economy are to foster justice and equality for the people of our world we will need to rewrite the existing rules of global trade Charles Kernaghan director of the National Labor Committee This book delves deep into the industry's trade journals congressional testimony newspaper accounts and economic and political scholarship of the last fifty five years to tell the story of U S trade policy and the decline of labor standards in the apparel industry This patient and voluminous examination systematically reveals for the first time how the U S sacrificed its apparel workers on the altar first of the anti Communist crusade and then of free trade ideology Robert J S Ross PhD Professor of Sociology and Director International Studies Stream Clark University Making Sweatshops is in part a history of the apparel and textile industries in the U S and the world But it is much more than that It is also about power and globalization Rosen explains how the former shapes the latter and how workers around the world suffer because of it Activists policy makers consumers anyone interested in understanding why sweatshops exist should read this book Bruce Raynor President Union of Needletrades Industrial and Textile Employees Unite Rosen convincingly demonstrates that it is the transnational corporations rather than the consumers and certainly rather than the workers who benefit from trade liberalization whose rules the lobbyists for these very corporations more or less write for supine politicians This is a book in the great tradition of solid scholarship allied with deep commitment to the cause of global economic justice Leslie Sklair author of Globalization Capitalism and its Alternatives

Wives of Steel Karen Olson, 2005 Wives of Steel is based on more than eighty formal interviews conducted over a fifteen year period with women and some men both white and black all of whom were part of Sparrows Point as workers spouses or longtime residents of the local communities Through the stories they tell we see how a male dominated industry has influenced personal family and social experiences over several generations We also see the distinct differences and surprising similarities among the lives of black and white women which often reflect the complicated relationships among black and white steelworkers in the plant Searching for Home Abroad Jeff Lesser, 2003-09-15 A multidisciplinary study of the transnational cultural identity of Brazilian nationals of Japanese descent and their more recent attempts to re settle in Japan The End of the Line Kathryn Marie Dudley, 1997-06-23 This volume tells the story of what the 1988 closing of the Chrysler assembly plant in Kenosha Wisconsin meant to the people who lived in that town Through interviews with displaced autoworkers and other members of the community it dramatizes the lessons Kenoshans drew from the plant shutdown This volume tells the story of what the 1988 closing of the Chrysler assembly plant in Kenosha Wisconsin meant to the people who lived in that company town Since the early days of the 20th century Kenosha had forged its identity and politics around the interests of the auto industry When nearly 6000 workers lost their jobs in the shutdown the community faced not only a serious economic crisis but also a profound moral one In this study Dudley describes the painful often confusing process of change that residents of Kenosha like the increasing number of Americans who are caught in the crossfire of de industrialization were forced to undergo Through interviews with displaced autoworkers and Kenosha s community leaders high school counsellors and a rising class of upwardly mobile professionals Dudley dramatizes the lessons Kenoshans drew from the plant shutdown Newcomers In Workplace Louise Lamphere,Alex Stepick,Guillermo J.
