George Washington Bacon, Bacon's Up-To-Date Map of London 1902 Old House Books,2006-12 A detailed facsimile colour reproduction showing the greatest city in the world a century ago From Hammersmith in the west to Limehouse in the east Railways tube trains tram routes prominent buildings workhouses factories and street names are clearly shown Bacon's Up to Date Street Map of London 1902 ,2002-10-01 A very detailed street map of London first published a century ago as the expansive Victorian era finally drew to a close The massive development of the nineteenth century is well illustrated by the appearance of numerous docks and factories along the lower reaches of the Thames where the constant bustle of trade served the needs of the Empire and the mother country The railways serving other parts of the country were now well established and the underground train system competed with the trams for passengers within the capital Large areas that were orchards market gardens and marshes only fifty years before are now well within the built up area but Willesden and Herne Hill are still shown as villages surrounded by open countryside Bound in a hardcover jacket Each map is accompanied by an illustrated booklet which was produced to accompany the original edition and together they provide a fascinating glimpse into life in London a century ago Bacon's 'up-to-date' cycling pocket road-book of England & Wales
