Giembycz, 2013-03-09 Many factors may influence the release of neurotransmitters from airway nerves 1 This is likely to be important in physiological control of airway functions and may be particularly relevant in airway diseases such as asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease COPD Neural elements in airways interact in a complex manner and the activation of certain neural pathways may profoundly influence the release of transmitters from other neural pathways Similarly inflammatory mediators released from inflammatory cells in the airways may also modulate neurotransmitter release There are marked differences between species in airway innervation and in neuromodulatory effects and wherever possible studies in human airways have been emphasised although information on neuromodulation in human airways is somewhat limited at present Release of neurotransmitters from nerve terminals occurs via a Ca^{2+} dependent secretion evoked by a nerve action potential but may also be evoked experimentally by a high extracellular K concentration which directly depolarises the nerve terminal membrane Modulation refers to the alteration of neurotransmitter release which may either be increased facilitation or reduced inhibition by the action of a particular agent thus changing the magnitude of the neurally mediated response Such agents would normally act on receptors on the nerve terminal which are referred to as pre junctional or presynaptic receptors in contrast to post junctional or post synaptic receptors located on the target cells which are influenced by that particular transmitter Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed Bowker Staff, Staff Bowker, Ed, 2004 German books in print, 1975 Cumulated Index Medicus, 1994 Verzeichnis lieferbarer Bücher, 1999 Airways Smooth Muscle David Raeburn, Mark A.
