become battlegrounds in America's continuing cultural wars      Memories of War Thomas A. Chambers, 2012-09-24 Even in the midst of the Civil War its battlefields were being dedicated as hallowed ground Today those sites are among the most visited places in the United States In contrast the battlegrounds of the Revolutionary War had seemingly been forgotten in the aftermath of the conflict in which the nation forged its independence Decades after the signing of the Constitution the battlefields of Yorktown Saratoga Fort Moultrie Ticonderoga Guilford Courthouse Kings Mountain and Cowpens among others were unmarked except for crumbling forts and overgrown ramparts Not until the late 1820s did Americans begin to recognize the importance of these places In Memories of War Thomas A Chambers recounts America's rediscovery of its early national history through the rise of battlefield tourism in the first half of the nineteenth century Travelers in this period Chambers finds wanted more than recitations of regimental movements when they visited battlefields they desired experiences that evoked strong emotions and lent meaning to the bleached bones and decaying fortifications of a past age Chambers traces this impulse through efforts to commemorate Braddock's Field and Ticonderoga the cultivated landscapes masking the violent past of the Hudson River valley the overgrown ramparts of Southern war sites and the scenic vistas at War of 1812 battlefields along the Niagara River Describing a progression from neglect to the Romantic embrace of the landscape and then to ritualized remembrance Chambers brings his narrative up to the beginning of the Civil War during and after which the memorialization of such sites became routine assuming significant political and cultural power in the American imagination      Heritage, Contested Sites, and Borders of Memory in the Asia Pacific, 2023-10-09 Contests over heritage in Asia are intensifying and reflect the growing prominence of political and social disputes over historical narratives shaping heritage sites and practices and the meanings attached to them These contests emphasize that heritage is a means of narrating the past that demarcates constitutes produces and polices political and social borders in the present In its spaces varied intersections of actors networks and scales of governance interact negotiate and compete resulting in heritage sites that are cut through by borders of memory This volume edited by Edward Boyle and Steven Ivings and with contributions from scholars across the humanities history social sciences and Asian studies interrogates how particular actors and narratives make heritage and how borders of memory shape the sites they produce      Grandma's Memories Mary Dow Brine, 1888      The Memories of Fifty Years William Henry Sparks, 1872      The Transcriptional Regulation of Memory Benedict C. Albensi, Jelena Djordjevic, 2016-09-06 The formation of various forms of memory involves a series of distinct cellular and molecular mechanisms many of which are not fully understood There are highly conserved pathways that are involved in learning memory and synaptic plasticity which is the primary substrate for memory storage The formation of short term across minutes memory is mediated by local changes in synapses while long term across hours to days memory storage is associated with activation of transcription and synthesis of proteins that modify synaptic function Transcription factors which can either repress or activate transcription play a vital role in driving protein synthesis underlying synaptic plasticity and memory whereby protein synthesis provides the necessary building blocks to accommodate structural changes at the synapse that foster memory formation Recent data implicate several families of transcription factors that appear critically important in the regulation of memory In this Topic we will focus on the families of transcription factors thus far found to be critically involved in synaptic plasticity and memory formation These include cAMP response element binding protein CREB Rel nuclear factor B Rel NFB CCAAT enhancer binding protein C EBP and early growth response factor Egr In recent years numerous studies have implicated epigenetic mechanisms changes in gene activity and expression that occur without alteration in gene sequence in the memory consolidation process DNA methylation and chromatin remodeling are critically involved in learning and memory supporting a role of epigenetic mechanisms Here we provide more evidence of the importance of DNA methylation histone posttranslational modifications and the role of histone acetylation and HDAC inhibitors in above mentioned processes

Theorizing Social Memories Gerd Sebald,Jatin Wagle,2015-11-19 Public debates over the last two decades about social memories about how as societies we remember make sense of and even imagine and invent our collective pasts suggest that grand narratives have been abandoned for numerous little stories that contest the unified visions of the past But while focusing on the diversity of social remembering these fragmentary accounts have also revealed the fault lines within the theoretical terrain of memory studies This critical anthology seeks to bridge these rifts and breaks within the contemporary theoretical landscape by addressing the pressing issues of social differentiation and forgetting as also the relatively unexplored futuristic aspect of social memories Arranged in four thematic sections which focus on the concepts temporalities functions and contexts of social memories this book includes essays that range across disciplines and present a variety of theoretical approaches from phenomenological sociology and systems theory to biography research and post colonialism
