minimal focus on the context for business In reality firms large and small are highly affected by the context in which they operate yet context is not uniformly conceptualized theorized and operationalized by scholars of business and management While most theories have come from developed countries with bountiful contexts the diverse contexts of Western Asia are little understood Religious factors are profoundly dominant in Western Asia and businesses in this diverse area operate with considerations that are rarely considered in research This book reveals a variety of schools of thought that have molded
