Alsino And The Condor:

Cinema of Solitude Charles Ramírez Berg, 2010-07-05 La crisis a period of political and economic turmoil in Mexico that began in the late 1960s spawned a new era in Mexican cinema Known as el Nuevo Cine the New Cinema these films presented alienated characters caught in a painful transition period in which old family gender and social roles have ceased to function without being replaced by viable new ones These are the films explored by Charles Ramírez Berg in Cinema of Solitude the first book length critical study of Mexican cinema in English Berg discusses the major films and filmmakers of el Nuevo Cine in depth He analyzes dozens of commercial movies from popular comedies and adventures to award winning films Introductory chapters address the issue of mexicanidad Mexican national identity and outline Mexican history the history of film as popular culture and as a leading national industry and the ideological dynamics of Mexican cinema In thematically arranged chapters Berg investigates the images of women men and social structures portrayed in New Cinema films He finds that women characters have begun to reject traditional stereotypes for more positive images while male characters have grown ambiguous and undefined as machismo is abandoned Other chapters trace the continuing marginalization of Indians in Mexican culture the changes in male dominance within the family and the disruptive social and economic effects caused by migration For everyone interested in Mexican culture as reflected in its major cinematic productions as well as students of film theory and national cinemas this book will be important reading Cinema and the Sandinistas Jonathan Buchsbaum, 2010-01-01 Following the Sandinista Revolution in 1979 young bohemian artists rushed to the newly formed Nicaraguan national film institute INCINE to contribute to the recovery of national identity through the creation of a national film project Over the next eleven years the filmmakers of INCINE produced over seventy films documentary fiction and hybrids that collectively reveal a unique vision of the Revolution drawn not from official FSLN directives but from the filmmakers own cinematic interpretations of the Revolution as they were living it This book examines the INCINE film project and assesses its achievements in recovering a Nicaraguan national identity through the creation of a national cinema Using a wealth of firsthand documentation the films themselves interviews with numerous INCINE personnel and INCINE archival records Jonathan Buchsbaum follows the evolution of INCINE s project and situates it within the larger historical project of militant revolutionary filmmaking in Latin America His research also raises crucial questions about the viability of national cinemas in the face of accelerating globalization and technological changes which reverberate far beyond Nicaragua s experiment in revolutionary filmmaking Latin American Films, 1932-1994 Ronald Schwartz, 2015-09-17 In 1931 Antonio Moreno completed Santa Mexico s first true sound film In it he established one of the foremost genres of Latin American cinema the popular melodrama which continues to this day Latin American filmmakers came to the fore in the fifties and sixties and as 1992 s Como agua para chocolate Like Water for Chocolate showed Latin American films continue to be a major part of the international film scene In this work over 300 of the most significant films from Argentina Brazil Cuba

Mexico Bolivia Colombia Ecuador Peru and other Latin American countries are covered Each entry includes the English title director year of release running time language country and a detailed plot synopsis Notes about the production and the filmmakers are also provided for many entries

Third World Film Making and the West Roy Armes, 1987-07-29 This volume is the first fully comprehensive account of film production in the Third World Although they are usually ignored or marginalized in histories of world cinema Third World countries now produce well over half of the world's films Roy Armes sets out initially to place this huge output in a wider context examining the forces of tradition and colonialism that have shaped the Third World defined as those countries that have emerged from Western control but have not fully developed their economic potential or rejected the capitalist system in favor of some socialist alternative He then considers the paradoxes of social structure and cultural life in the post independence world where even such basic concepts as nation national culture and language are problematic The first experience of cinema for such countries has invariably been that of imported Western films which created the audience and in most cases still dominate the market today Thus Third World film makers have had to assert their identity against formidable outside pressures The later sections of the book look at their output from a number of angles in terms of the stages of overall growth and corresponding stages of cinematic development from the point of view of regional evolution in Asia Africa and Latin America and through a detailed examination of the work of some of the Third World's most striking film innovators In addition to charting the broad outlines of filmic developments too little known in Europe and the United States the book calls into question many of the assumptions that shape conventional film history It stresses the role of distribution in defining and limiting production queries simplistic notions of independent national cinemas and points to the need to take social and economic factors into account when considering authorship in cinema Above all the book celebrates the achievements of a mass of largely unknown film makers who in difficult circumstances have distinctively expanded our definitions of the art of cinema Roy Armes who lives in London has written nine books on film his most recent being French Cinema He spent more than three years researching this volume

Nicaragua and the Politics of Utopia Daniel Chavez, 2015-12-08 The history of modern Nicaragua is populated with leaders promising a new and better day Inevitably as Nicaragua and the Politics of Utopia demonstrates reality casts a shadow and the community must look to the next leader As an impoverished state second only to Haiti in the Americas Nicaragua has been the scene of cyclical attempts and failures at modern development Author Daniel Chavez investigates the cultural and ideological bases of what he identifies as the three decisive movements of social reinvention in Nicaragua the regimes of the Somoza family of much of the early to mid twentieth century the governments of the Sandinista party and the present day struggle to adapt to the global market economy For each era Chavez reveals the ways Nicaraguan popular culture adapted and interpreted the new political order shaping critiquing or amplifying the regime's message of stability and prosperity for the people These tactics of interpretation otherwise known as meaning making became all important for the Nicaraguan people as they opposed the autocracy of Somocismo or complemented the Sandinistas or struggled to find their place in the Neoliberal era In every case Chavez shows the reflective nature of cultural production and its pursuit of utopian idealism Latino American Cinema
