Cover Crops And Smallholder Agriculture Lebons From Latin America:

Cover Crops in Smallholder Agriculture Simon Anderson, Barry Pound, Sabine Gündel, 2001 Lessons learned in Latin America is about the use and dissemination of cover crops in different agroecosystems need to be made more widely available not only to Spanish speaking but also Anglophone regions This publication aims to inform a wide range of actors involved in rural development projects as well as those in applied research about the potential of cover crops as components of low external input agricultural LEIA systems Cover crops are or have the potential to be an important component in complex diverse risk prone and resource poor farming situations The publication includes selected case studies from four different countries in Latin America These address key issues regarding crop cover integration in LEIA systems A wide range of agroecosystems are covered by the case studies so that the information can be adapted for use in other regions The key issues covered by the case studies are the following Cover crops in annual cropping systems Honduras Cover crops in perennial crops Bolivia Role of cover crops in animal husbandry Mexico cover crop systems soil improvement and conservation Honduras Alternatives to slash and burn Mexico Diffusion aspects of cover crop based systems Applied research activities for agricultural systems improvement Bolivia and Action research with campesino farmers in South east Mexico However the different aspects of cover crops cannot be treated separately from each other The cross cutting nature of the different aspects of cover crops becomes obvious from the case studies themselves and the treatment highlights potential applications in other contexts An Introduction to Human Geography J. H. G. Lebon, 1962 Smallholders at Risk Arantxa Guereña, Stephanie Burgos, Oxfam GB, Oxfam, 2014 Smallholders and the Non-Farm Transition in Latin America I. Harbaugh, 2014-09-01 Smallholders and the Non Farm Transition in Latin America explores the drivers of agricultural displacement in Latin America and argues that government support is essential to help small farmers gain the skills financial capital and opportunities needed to transition to a profitable alternative in the non farm sector Cover Crops in Hillside Agriculture Daniel Buckles, Bernard Triomphe, Gustavo Sain, International Development Research Centre (Canada), International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center, 1998 Cover Crops in Hillside Agriculture Farmer innovation with Mucuna Food for the Few Gerardo Otero, 2008-07-15 Recent decades have seen tremendous changes in Latin America s agricultural sector resulting from a broad program of liberalization instigated under pressure from the United States the IMF and the World Bank Tariffs have been lifted agricultural markets have been opened and privatized land reform policies have been restricted or eliminated and the perspective has shifted radically toward exportation rather than toward the goal of feeding local citizens Examining the impact of these transformations the contributors to Food for the Few Neoliberal Globalism and Biotechnology in Latin America paint a somber portrait describing local peasant farmers who have been made responsible for protecting impossibly vast areas of biodiversity or are forced to specialize in one genetically modified crop or who become low wage workers within a capitalized farm complex Using dozens of examples such as these the deleterious consequences are surveyed from the perspectives of experts in diverse fields including anthropology economics geography political science and sociology From Kathy McAfee s Exporting Crop Biotechnology The Myth of Molecular Miracles to Liz Fitting s Importing Corn Exporting Labor The Neoliberal Corn Regime GMOs and the Erosion of Mexican Biodiversity Food for the Few balances disturbing findings with hopeful assessments of emerging grassroots alternatives Surveying not only the Latin American conditions that led to bankruptcy for countless farmers but also the North s practices such as the heavy subsidies implemented to protect North American farmers these essays represent a comprehensive keenly informed response to a pivotal global crisis

The Changing Scale of Agriculture in Latin America Jordan Graesser, 2017 Modern agriculture has profoundly impacted the global food system through intensification and expansion into non agricultural land cover National governments have encouraged mechanized farming to improve cultivation efficiency increase agricultural production and advance agricultural trade and non food crops As a result agriculture across the globe has become more efficient but it has also altered crop dynamics and augmented specialization In Latin America and the Caribbean LAC large scale industrialized agriculture has rapidly transformed landscapes during the past few decades As a result the region experienced the most rapid increase of agricultural area across the globe during this century Flex crops particularly soybeans and sugarcane were a major driving force behind agricultural expansion into forest and grassland ecosystems Consequently agriculture in LAC has become more specialized and mechanized over time The roles and environmental impacts of different agricultural practices e g crop farmers vs livestock ranchers and actors e g smallholders vs largeholders is still largely unclear though In this dissertation I explore the transformation of agriculture across LAC First in Chapter 2 I evaluate the expansion dynamics between cropland and pastureland across LAC from 2001 to 2013 We used annual data from a coarse resolution satellite MODIS to differentiate between the two agricultural systems and illustrate that not all deforestation in agricultural frontiers was led by livestock ranchers I follow this work in Chapters 3 and 4 with a field level evaluation of cropland change in a region of South America where agriculture expanded at the fastest rates across the continent There cropland production is said to be dominated by large scale farmers but the degree of their presence across the landscape is not well known Therefore I developed an image processing method to semi automatically detect individual crop field parcels The 3rd chapter documents this new approach In Chapter 4 I apply these methods over 24 years of Landsat imagery and find that large scale cropland farming increasingly expanded into deforested land Finally in Chapter 5 I examine the role of different crops evaluating the spatial dynamics of 4 major crop groups analyzed using sub national agricultural statistics In summary my contributions through this work include 1 the first continental analysis of annual agricultural land cover changes across LAC 2 development of new methodology to monitor the scale of farming 3 the quantification of large scale agriculture s increasing presence at the deforestation frontiers and 4 identification that soy the crop with the strongest link to South American deforestation contributed to more agricultural specialization but not at the expense of other major crops The agricultural sector in LAC is rapidly changing and the results from this thesis advance our understanding of where and how it is changing

Campesino a Campesino Eric Holt-Giménez, 2006

Campesino a Campesino tells the inspiring story of a true grassroots movement poor peasant farmers teaching one another how to protect their environment while still earning a living The first book in English about the farmer led sustainable agriculture movement in Latin America Campesino a Campesino includes lots of first person stories and commentary from the farmer teachers mixing personal accounts with detailed analysis of the political socioeconomic and ecological factors that galvanized the movement Campesino farmer leading a farmer to farmer training session in Mexico by Eric Holt Gimenez Many years ago author Eric Holt Gimenez was a volunteer trying to teach sustainable agriculture techniques in the dusty highlands of central Mexico with little success Near the end of his tenure he invited a group of visiting Guatemalan farmers to teach a course in his village What he saw was like nothing he had known The Guatemalans used parables stories and humor to present agricultural improvement to their Mexican compadres as a logical outcome of clear thinking and compassion love of farming of family of nature and of community Rather than try to convince the Mexicans of their innovations they insisted they experiment new things on a small scale first to see how well they worked And they saw themselves as students respecting the Mexicans deep lifelong knowledge of their own particular land and climate All they asked in return was that the Mexicans turn around and share their new knowledge with others which they did CAC campo3_photo by Food First This exchange was typical of a grassroots movement called Campesino a Campesino or Farmer to Farmer which has grown up in southern Mexico and war torn Central America over the last three decades In the book Campesino a Campesino Holt Gimenez writes the first history of the movement describing the social political economic and environmental circumstances that shape it The voices and stories of dozens of farmers in the movement are captured bringing to vivid life this hopeful story of peasant farmers helping one another to farm sustainably protecting their land their environment and their families future
