Excerpt from Crabb s English Synonyms Apology although I am aware that they will not fall in with the views of many who may be competent to decide on its literary merits I write not to please or displease any description of per sons but I trust that what I have written according to the dic tates of my mind will meet the approbation of those whose good Opinion I am most solicitous to obtain Should any object to the introduction of morality in a work of science I beg them to consider that a writer whose business it was to mark the nice shades of distinction between words closely allied could not do justice to his subject without entering into all the relations of society and showing from the acknowledged sense of many moral and religious terms what has been the general sense of mankind on many of the most important questions which have agitated the world My first object certainly has been to assist the philological inquirer in ascertaining the force and comprehension of the English language yet I should have thought my work but half completed had I made it a mere register of verbal distinctions While others seize every opportunity unblushingly to avow and zealously to propagate Opinions destructive of good order it would ill become any individual of contrary sentiments to shrink from stating his convictions when called upon as he seems to be by an occasion like that which has now offered itself As to the rest I throw my self ou the indulgence of the public with the assurance that having used every endeavor to deserve their
