Violence Randall Collins,2009-08-03 In the popular misconception fostered by blockbuster action movies and best selling thrillers not to mention conventional explanations by social scientists violence is easy under certain conditions like poverty racial or ideological hatreds or family pathologies Randall Collins challenges this view in Violence arguing that violent confrontation goes against human physiological hardwiring It is the exception not the rule regardless of the underlying conditions or motivations Collins gives a comprehensive explanation of violence and its dynamics drawing upon video footage cutting edge forensics and ethnography to examine violent situations up close as they actually happen and his conclusions will surprise you Violence comes neither easily nor automatically Antagonists are by nature tense and fearful and their confrontational anxieties put up a powerful emotional barrier against violence Collins guides readers into the very real and disturbing worlds of human discord from domestic abuse and schoolyard bullying to muggings violent sports and armed conflicts He reveals how the fog of war pervades all violent encounters limiting people mostly to bluster and bluff and making violence when it does occur largely incompetent often injuring someone other than its intended target Collins shows how violence can be triggered only when pathways around this emotional barrier are presented He explains why violence typically comes in the form of atrocities against the weak ritualized exhibitions before audiences or clandestine acts of terrorism and murder and why a small number of individuals are competent at violence Violence overturns standard views about the root causes of violence and offers solutions for confronting it in the future

consider carefully whether it is necessary This can hardly be the case if previous research in the selected field has already been the subject of an earlier review or even several competing surveys On the other hand more thorough study is necessary if the intensity and scope of research are increasing without comprehensive assessments That was the situation in Western societies when work began on this project in the summer of 1998 It was then too that the challenges emerged any manual especially an international one is a very special type of text which is anything but routine It calls for a special effort the state of the art has to be documented for selected subject areas and its presentation made as compelling as possible The editors were delighted therefore by the cooperation and commitment shown by the eighty one contributors from ten countries who were recruited to write on the sixty two different topics by the constructive way in which any requests for changes were dealt with and by the patient response to our many queries This volume is the result of a long process It began with the first drafts outlining the structure of the work which were submitted to various distinguished colleagues Friedheim Neidhardt of Berlin Gertrud Nunner Winkler of Munich and Roland Eckert of Trier to name only a few supplied valuable comments at this stage
