Nature Prose Dominic Head, 2022-08-15 Nature Prose seeks to explain the popularity and appeal of contemporary writing about nature. This book intervenes in key areas of contemporary debate about literature and the environment and explores the enduring appeal of writing about nature during an ecological crisis. Using a range of international examples with a focus on late twentieth and early twenty-first century writing from Britain and the US, Dominic Head argues that nature writing contains formal effects which encapsulate our current ecological dilemma and offer a fresh resource for critical thinking. The environmental crisis has injected a fresh urgency into nature writing along with a new piquancy for those readers seeking solace in the nonhuman or for those looking to change their habits in the face of ecological catastrophe. However, behind this apparently strong match between the aims of nature writers and the desires of their readers, there is also a shared mood of radical uncertainty and insecurity. The treatment and construction of nature in contemporary imaginative prose reveals some significant paradoxes beneath its dominant moods: moods which are usually earnest, sometimes celebratory, sometimes prophetic or cautionary. It is in these paradoxical moments that the contemporary ecological crisis is formally encoded in a progressive development of ecological consciousness from the late 1950s onwards. Nature prose fiction and nonfiction is now contemporaneous with a defining time of crisis while also being formally fashioned by that context. This is a mode of writing that emerges in a world in crisis but which is also in some ways in crisis itself. With chapters on remoteness, exclusivity, abundance and rarity, this book marks a turning point in how literary criticism engages with nature writing. Day Eight

Returns Brian Beresford, 2025-08-20 Because Denny had been born in a strange secret room, he received the incredible gift of Day Eight, giving him an extra day in his life every week for ten weeks. Ten years later, the Day Eight story of Denny and Antoinette now continues in the prehistoric past and in the distant future with other extra days including sport, history, comedy, hill walking, a television quiz, farming, music, and even a meeting with a famous legendary figure. But Antoinette seems to know that something awful is going to happen, and she reveals that a mysterious threat can bring disaster. Denny tries to solve the problem they must face if Day Eight is to survive. Every reader of this book can sing a special song called Over the Bridge, which has been specially written by Brian Beresford. Search for it on YouTube i2i Publishing channel, listen to it and sing along as the words appear on the screen. Brian Beresford is a writer, composer, and songwriter. He visits many schools, and children love his story-telling approach. He hopes that readers aged 8 to 12 and beyond will love this sequel to the popular Day Eight. Walking the Camera in the South Pennines Stuart Paulley, 2024-03-28

The South Pennines covers the hill country between Greater Manchester and West Yorkshire, easily accessible but less well known than other walking hot spots. This is an area of high moorland with deep, often wooded valleys and drained by fast-flowing rivers such as the Colne and Calder. Early textile industry took place in isolated farms and small collections of houses dotted around the countryside where income from farming of often marginal land was supplemented by handloom weaving; the workshops often ran along the top storey of a terrace of cottages with the typical rows of mullioned windows There were so many of these isolated settlements with people needing to travel between them and to the cloth markets such as Halifax s magnificent Piece Hall that there is a dense network of footpaths so inviting for exploration on foot Later textile production moved to water driven mills now abandoned but providing a unique landscape as they are being reclaimed by nature such as at Crimsworth Dene or Healey Dell Steam power using the plentiful water and coal resources meant that huge factories could be built for textile production these are themselves now being adapted for other uses including housing such as the Titanic Mill at Slaithwaite Stuart and his wife Jean spent many hours walking the paths and byways of this magical area with Stuart s camera recording the many beautiful and interesting sights they encountered This book is a testament to a couple s love of rambling for almost 40 years in the magical South Pennines
