

The background of the cover is a painting. On the right side, there is a close-up of a man's face, focusing on his long, flowing white beard and mustache. He appears to be looking down. On the left side, there is a hammer with a wooden handle and a metal head. The head of the hammer is stained with a dark red liquid, presumably blood. The overall color palette is dominated by reds, browns, and the white of the beard.

Neurotrauma Management for the Severely Injured Polytrauma Patient James M. Ecklund,Leon E. Moores,2017-01-12 This text addresses many of the questions which occur when medical professionals of various disciplines interact and have different plans and interventions each with its own valid scientific and or experience based rationale Questions involving tourniquet placement ideal fluids and volumes for resuscitation VTE prophylaxis and many other management considerations Straightforward decisions in the patient with a single diagnosis often conflict when applied to the neurologically injured polytrauma patients Neurotrauma Management for the Severely Injured Polytrauma Patient answers as many of these questions as possible based on the current literature vast experience with severe neurotrauma in the current conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq and the experience of trauma experts across the globe as well as proposes areas for future study where answers are currently less clear NETosis: At the Intersection of Cell Biology, Microbiology, and Immunology Mariana J. Kaplan,Marko Radic,2013-08-08 NETosis is a unique form of cell death that is characterized by the release of decondensed chromatin and granular contents to the extracellular space The initial observation of NETosis placed the process within the context of the innate immune response to infections Neutrophils the most numerous leukocytes that arrive quickly at the site of an infection were the first cell type shown to undergo extracellular trap formation However subsequent studies showed that other granulocytes are also capable of releasing nuclear chromatin following stimulation The extracellular chromatin acts to immobilize microbes and prevent their dispersal in the host. Bacterial breakdown products and inflammatory stimuli induce NETosis and the release of NETs requires enzyme activities. Histones in NET chromatin become modified by peptidylarginine deiminase 4 (PAD4) and cleaved at specific sites by proteases. NETs serve for attachment of bactericidal enzymes including myeloperoxidase, leukocyte proteases and the cathelicidin LL-37. While the benefit of NETs in an infection appears clear, NETs also figure prominently at the center of various pathologic states. Therefore it is important for NETs to be efficiently cleared; else digestive enzymes may gain access to tissues where inflammation takes place. Persistent NET exposure at sites of inflammation may lead to a further complication: NET antigens may provoke acquired immune responses and over time could initiate autoimmune reactions. Recent studies identified aberrant NET synthesis and/or clearance in inflammatory autoimmune conditions such as systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE), psoriasis, ANCA-positive vasculitis, gout and Felty's syndrome. In the case of SLE, for example, it appears that LL-37 exposed in the NETs may be a significant trigger of type I Interferon responses in this disease. Recent evidence also implicates aberrant NET formation in the development of endothelial damage, atherosclerosis and thrombosis. NETosis is thus of interest to researchers who investigate innate immune responses, host-pathogen interactions, chronic inflammatory disorders, cell and vascular biology, biochemistry and autoimmunity. As we approach the 10-year anniversary of the initial discovery of NETosis, it is useful and timely to review the so far identified mechanisms and pathways of NET formation, their role in bacterial and fungal defense and their putative importance as inducers of autoimmune responses. We look forward to a rich and rigorous discussion of these and related issues that benefit from interdisciplinary approaches, collaborations and exciting discoveries. Journal of the Senate, Legislature of the State of California. California. Legislature. Senate, 1967. Memoirs of a Health Inspector Bruce D. Lundgren, 2025-05-30. When people buy food from supermarkets and restaurants they do so without much concern for their safety. There are laws after all that exist to keep consumers protected from foodborne illness. If they give any thought to it they assume the inspections that help enforce those laws are routine and uneventful. On that last point they would be mistaken. Memoirs of a Health Inspector recounts the adventures of Bruce D. Lundgren who worked in food safety for thirty-three years. Lundgren interacted with all sorts of colorful characters from gun-toting restaurant owners to mobsters. Occupational hazards included not only cockroaches but threats, altercations, bribe proposals and in one notable case an offer of sex to avoid a fine. His experiences taught him to stay strong in the face of both intimidation and temptation and to treat people with dignity. In turns irreverent and thought-provoking Memoirs of a Health Inspector gives readers a glimpse into little-known pockets of humanity while providing reassurance that yes, public health officials really are looking out for us.
