Negotiating the Mediated City Zlatan Krajina,2013-11-26 This book is an interdisciplinary empirical investigation of how people interact with public screens in their daily lives In more and more surprising locations screens of various kinds appear within the sightlines of passers by in contemporary cities Outdoor advertisers target audiences which are increasingly mobile public art uses screens to interrogate urban change while postmodern architecture finds electronic imagery a suitable tool of expression Traditionally urban sociology research has assumed that people seek to filter urban stimuli but recent accounts of public screens suggest producers design and position display interfaces site specifically so as to engage with those moving past This study offers insight both into the dynamics of actual encounters and into the long term process of how people learn to live with repeated invitations to consume media in public spaces The book includes four cases street advertising underground transport advertising and installation art in London UK and media facade architecture in Zadar Croatia Krajina shows that maintaining familiarity with everyday surroundings in media cities that change beyond citizens control is a temporary achievement and a recursive struggle Finalist for the Jane Jacobs Urban Communication Foundation book award 2014
