Tumour necrosis factor-alpha and weight loss in chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases Sherif Mohamed, 2018-08-07 Master's Thesis from the year 2001 in the subject Medicine, Neoplasms, Oncology, language: English, abstract: Weight loss is a common feature in patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). The clinical importance of weight loss, particularly loss of fat-free mass (FFM), has been demonstrated in its adverse effects on physical performance and quality of life. Moreover, weight loss and a low body weight are unfavorable prognostic factors in survival, independent of lung function. Mechanisms of malnutrition in those patients are not fully understood. Several factors have been implicated. Increased resting energy expenditure (REE) contributes to the main hypothesis for weight loss in COPD patients. However, not all patients with COPD who lose weight are hypermetabolic. Recent data have shown that a systemic inflammatory response is present in patients with COPD. A clear evidence for a relationship between weight loss and plasma tumour necrosis factor alpha (TNF) has been shown in COPD patients. TNF produces a cachexia-like syndrome in animal models and has been implicated as a mediator of cachexia in several clinical conditions, including cancer, chronic heart failure, cystic fibrosis, and anorexia nervosa. Nutritional assessment for COPD patients is essential to identify those individuals who will benefit from nutritional support therapies and to determine baseline values to measure the effectiveness of nutritional intervention. It includes several methods; no simple recommendation can be given regarding the best method for nutritional assessment. Because of the negative impact of malnutrition on the respiratory system in COPD patients, contributing to morbidity and mortality, it's valuable to include management strategies that increase energy balance in order to increase weight and fat-free mass in those malnourished COPD patients. The aim of this study is to determine the most valuable measurements to assess the nutritional status of COPD patients as regards the anthropometric measurements the somatic and visceral proteins and markers of inflammation and to evaluate the correlation between serum TNF levels and weight loss among those patients as a trial to improve their clinical prognosis and quality of life

Exercise, Energy Balance, and Cancer Cornelia M. Ulrich, Karen Steindorf, Nathan A. Berger, 2012-10-10 While it is well established that the worldwide pandemic of overweight and obesity has profound effects on promoting cancer it is now recognized that an alternative aspect of energy balance namely physical activity and exercise have significant beneficial effects on all aspects of cancer across the spectrum from prevention through treatment and extending through survivorship Moreover salutary effects of physical activity and exercise extend across the age span from youth to old age and occur at all stages of cancer extending into palliative care While the effect of physical activity and exercise on cancer may be partially mediated through obesity control it is clear that considerable research is required and is ongoing at both the molecular and clinical levels to better understand the associated mechanisms and to develop optimal exercise strategies This volume will contain chapters on the effect of exercise on biological pathways in tumor growth state art exercise strategies and cutting edge research focused on different cancers and patient groups It will provide an important volume in this series on energy balance and cancer and a basis for ongoing research experimental approaches and application of evidence based practices to clinical care for patients with cancer     Marketing Research Report ,1980
