Paying the Price for Joining the WTO Roman Grynberg, Victor Ognitsev, Mohammed A. Razzaque, 2002 This paper focuses on the accession process for new WTO membership The basic premise is that the commitments demanded are too onerous for new members It argues that the whole process is fundamentally flawed and in fact forces applicant countries to accept demands that are not required under WTO agreements Section 2 is a brief discussion of the process of accession and highlights the inherent flaws Section 3 focuses on one of the crucial international trade agreements the General Agreement in Trade and Services GATS and provides sector specific commitments by countries Section 4 uses a series of statistical tests to verify whether acceding countries have made significantly higher number of specific commitments than existing WTO members Section 5 makes some concluding observations The paper uses a strong body of econometric evidence to support its claim that acceding countries undertake greater commitments than those made by WTO members of a similar development status to traditional differential treatment Dr Davenport's study will generate much interest both among donors and with small states
