Visions of the Future in Roman Frontier Kingdoms 100 BCE-100 CE Richard Teverson, 2024-09-03 This is the first book length exploration of the ways art from the edges of the Roman Empire represented the future examining visual representations of time and the role of artwork in Roman imperial systems This book focuses on four kingdoms from across the empire Cottius s Alpine kingdom in the north King Juba II s Mauretania in the south west Herodian Judea in the east and Kommagene to the north east Art from the imperial frontier is rarely considered through the lens of the aesthetics of time and Roman provincial art and the monuments of allied rulers are typically interpreted as evidence of the interaction between Roman and local identities In this interdisciplinary study which explores statues wall paintings coins monuments and inscriptions readers learn that these artworks served as something more they were created to represent the futures that allied rulers and their people foresaw The pressure of Roman imperialism drove patrons and artists on the empire s borders to imbue their creations with increasingly sophisticated ideas about the future as they wrestled with consequential decisions made under periods of intense political pressure Comprehensively illustrated and providing an important new approach to Roman material culture at the edge of empire Visions of the Future in Roman Frontier Kingdoms 100 BCE 100 CE is suitable for students and scholars working on Rome and its frontiers as well as Roman material culture more broadly and those studying the aesthetics of time in art and art history Performance, Subjectivity, and Experimentation Catherine Laws, 2020-07-10 Music reflects subjectivity and identity that idea is now deeply ingrained in both musicology and popular media commentary The study of music across cultures and practices often addresses the enactment of subjectivity in music how music expresses or represents an individual or a group However a sense of selfhood is also formed and continually reformed through musical practices not least performance How does this take place How might the work of practitioners reveal aspects of this process In what sense is subjectivity performed in and through musical practices This book explores these questions in relation to a range of artistic research involving contemporary musical practices drawing on perspectives from performance studies phenomenology embodied cognition and theories of gendered and cultural identity Functional Music Chuck Sokol, 2010

Ignorance of Law Douglas N. Husak, 2016 This book argues that ignorance of law should usually be a complete excuse from criminal liability It defends this conclusion by invoking two presumptions first the content of criminal law should conform to morality second mistakes of fact and mistakes of law should be treated symmetrically The author grounds his position in an underlying theory of moral and criminal responsibility according to which blameworthiness consists in a defective response to the moral reasons one has Since persons cannot be faulted for failing to respond to reasons for criminal liability they do not believe they have then ignorance should almost always excuse But persons are somewhat responsible for their wrongs when their mistakes of law are reckless that is when they consciously disregard a substantial and unjustifiable risk that their conduct might be wrong This book illustrates this with examples and critiques the arguments to the contrary offered by criminal theorists and moral philosophers It assesses the real world implications for the U S system of criminal justice The author describes connections between the problem of ignorance of law and other topics in moral and legal theory

Understanding Multiple Environmental Stresses National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee on Earth-Atmosphere Interactions: Understanding and Responding to Multiple Environmental Stresses, 2007-05-25 The research of the last decade has demonstrated that ecosystems and human systems are influenced by multiple factors including climate land use and the by products of resource use Understanding the net impact of a suite of simultaneously occurring environmental changes is essential for developing effective response strategies Using case studies on drought and a wide range of atmosphere ecosystem interactions a workshop was held in September 2005 to gather different perspectives on multiple stress scenarios The overarching lesson of the workshop is that society will require new and improved strategies for coping with multiple stresses and their impacts on natural socioeconomic systems Improved communication among stakeholders increased observations especially at regional scales improved model and information systems and increased infrastructure to provide better environmental monitoring vulnerability assessment and response analysis are all important parts of moving toward better understanding of and response to situations involving multiple stresses During the workshop seven near term opportunities for research and infrastructure that could help advance understanding of multiple stresses were also identified Physics Chris Carter, 2001

Activities for Calculating Kids Tracey Ann Schofield, 2001-03-01 Explore math concepts explore real world situations encourage logical thinking motivate your students Visitors Harold A. Skaarup, 2000-09-04 Suppose you could communicate with a visitor who was not from this place time space or even this dimension What would you want to ask them The answers probably lie in what our own response would be if we were them This book is based on a collection of interviews I have had with a few individuals who may have actually had such an experience The idea is that if enough of us are ready to ask the questions and gain the answers then our collective knowledge and understanding of the multiverse about us can only continue to be enhanced Sometimes the responses that you will read here are similar often they are diametrically opposed to each other An open but highly skeptical mind is extremely necessary if you are going to sift through the data that is presented in this book The intent is that it should peak your curiosity to learn more about visitors In this way we may be better informed and prepared and thus in some sort of coherent shape to deal with their arrival If you read this book you must be well prepared to choose for yourself what you will or will not believe
