O'Hanlon, 2004-12-07 Arms control for decades at the core of the foreign policy consensus today is among the more contentious issues in American politics It is pilloried and considered out of mode in many conservative quarters while being viewed as nearly sacrosanct in many liberal circles In this new book Michael Levi and Michael O Hanlon argue that neither the left nor the right has a correct view of the proper utility of arms control in the age of terror Arms control in the traditional sense lengthy treaties to limit nuclear and other military competitions among the great powers is no longer particularly useful Nor should arms control be pursued as a means to the end of constraining the power of nations or of promoting global government It is still a critical tool though for controlling dangerous technologies particularly those that in the hands of hostile states or terrorist organizations could cause massive death and destruction Arms control and coercive action including military force must be integrated into an overall strategy for preventing proliferation now more than ever before Arms control should be used to gain earlier warning of illicit activities inside dangerous states allowing the international community to take coercive action in a timely way The authors propose three new criteria to guide future arms control efforts designed to respond to today's geopolitical realities Arms control must focus on the dangers of catastrophic technology not so much in the hands of major powers as of small states and terrorist groups Their criteria lead to a natural focus on nuclear and biological technologies Much tougher measures to prevent countries from gaining nuclear weapons technology while purportedly complying with the Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty and procedures for controlling dangerous biological technologies will be most prominent in this framework while lower priority is given to efforts such as bilateral nuclear accords and most t Non-proliferation and Arms Control United States. Strategy and History Colin S. Gray,2007-01-24 Strategy and History comprises a selection of Professor Gray s key contributions to strategic debate over the past thirty years These essays have been selected both because they had significant messages for contemporary controversies and because they have some continuing relevance for today and the future Each essay in this book is really about strategy in the modern world and reflects the many dimensions of this complex subject This book covers a wide range of subjects and historical events but there are key issues covered throughout being strategic the consequences of actions a respect for Clausewitz s theory of war historical dependency the importance of geography being critical of enthusiasm for technology over human factors the primacy of politics This important publication provides an invaluable insight into the development of strategic studies over the past 30 years from one of the world s leading theorists and practitioners of the subject The book will be of great interest to all students and analysts of strategy

Chakma, 2014-12-17 South Asia is often viewed as a potential nuclear flashpoint and a probable source of nuclear terrorism But how valid are such perceptions This book seeks to address this question and assesses the region's nuclear security from two principal standpoints First it evaluates the robustness of the Indo Pakistani mutual deterrence by analysing the strengths and weaknesses of the competing arguments regarding the issue It also analyses the causes and consequences of nuclear arms race between India and Pakistan the nature of deterrence structure in the region and the challenges of confidence building and arms control between the two countries in order to assess the robustness of South Asia's nuclear deterrence Second it assesses the safety and security of the nuclear assets and nuclear infrastructure of India and Pakistan The author holds that the debate on South Asia's nuclear security is largely misplaced because the optimists tend to overemphasise the stabilising effects of nuclear weapons and the pessimists are too alarmists It is argued that while the risks of nuclear weapons are significant it is unlikely that India and Pakistan will give up their nuclear arsenals in the foreseeable future Therefore what needs to happen is that while nuclear elimination should be the long term goal in the interim years the two countries need to pursue minimum deterrence policies to reduce the likelihood of deterrence failure and the possibility of obtaining fissile materials by non state actors Managing Conflict in the Former Soviet Union Alekseï Arbatov, Alekseï
