Altar Fires Relighted A Study From A:

Prayers in Stone Paul Eli Ivey, 1999 The classical revival style of architecture made famous by the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago left its mark on one of the most sustained classical building movements in American architectural history the Christian Science church building movement By 1920 every major American city and many smaller towns contained an example of this architecture financed by the followers of Mary Baker Eddy the church's founder These buildings represented a new burgeoning American institution that appealed to business people and to young men and women working to succeed Characterized by middle class congregations that in the early part of the century were over 75 percent women Christian Science suggested radical civic reform solutions based on an idealistic and pragmatic individualism It attracted criticism from traditional churches and from the medical establishment due to its rapid growth and to its reinstatement of primitive Christianity's lost elements of physical healing and moral regeneration Prayers in Stone spins out the close connections between Christian Science church architecture and its social context This architecture served as a focal point for debates over the possibilities for a new twentieth century urban architecture that proponents believed would positively shape the behavior of citizens Thus these buildings played a critical role in discussions concerning religious and secular architecture as major elements of religious and social reform Drawing on a wide range of documentary evidence including material from the archives of the Mother Church in Boston Paul Ivey uses Christian Science architecture to explore the social implications of architectural styles and new building technologies to illuminate class based notions of civic reform and beautification and to investigate the use of architecture to bring about religious and social change In addition the book explores complex gender issues including early attempts to define a professional space for women as Christian Science practitioners Lavishly illustrated Prayers in Stone focuses on four major city arenas of Christian Science building Boston Chicago New York and the San Francisco Bay area to demonstrate the vital intersection of architecture and religion at the so called margins of American society Altar Fires Relighted, a Study From a Non-Partisan Standpoint of Movements and Tendencies at Work in the Religious Life Stephen Hasbrouck, 2000 Studies in Ancient Technology, Volume 6 Heat and Heating: Refrigeration, the Art of Cooling and Producing Cold: Light Forbes, 2023-07-24 Studies in Ancient Technology Robert James Forbes, 1955 Catalog of Copyright Entries, 1911 Altar Fires Relighted. Kratz, 2024-11-04 The Achaemenid period 550-330 BCE is rightly seen as one of the most formative periods in Judaism It is the period in which large portions of the Bible were edited and redacted and others were authored yet no dedicated interdisciplinary study has been undertaken to present a consistent picture of this decisive time period This book is dedicated to the study of the touchpoints between Yahwistic communities throughout the Achaemenid empire and the Iranian attributes of the empire that ruled over them for about two centuries Its approach is fundamentally interdisciplinary It brings together scholars of Achaemenid history literature and religion Iranian linguistics historians of the Ancient Near East archeologists biblical scholars and Semiticists The goal is to better understand the interchange of ideas expressions and concepts as well as the experience of historical events between Yahwists and the empire that ruled over them for over two centuries The book will open up a holistic perspective on this important era to scholars of a wide variety of fields in the study of Judaism in the Ancient Near East Leland Stanford Junior University Publications.
