

A woman with dark hair tied back, wearing sunglasses, a light green sleeveless top, and black shorts, is sitting on a black Yamaha motorcycle. She is holding a black helmet in her hands. The motorcycle is parked on a sandy, reddish-brown dirt path. In the background, there are sparse green bushes and a body of water under a clear blue sky. The text "Living an" is written in a large, white, serif font with a black outline, positioned at the top left of the image.

Travel, Tourism and Art Tijana Rakić, Jo-Anne Lester, 2016-02-17 Art in its many forms has long played an important role in people's imagination, experience, and remembrance of places, cultures, and travels, as well as in their motivation to travel. Travel and tourism, on the other hand, have also inspired numerous artists and featured in many artworks. The fascinating relationships between travel, tourism, and art encompass a wide range of phenomena, from historical Grand Tours during which a number of travellers experienced or produced artwork to present-day travel inspired by art, artworks produced by contemporary travellers, or artworks produced by locals for tourist consumption. Focusing on the representations of touristic places, locals, travellers, and tourists in artworks, the role of travel and tourism in inspiring artists, as well as the role of art and artwork in imagining, experiencing, and remembering places, and motivating travel and tourism, this edited volume provides a space for an exploration of both historical and contemporary relationships between travel, tourism, and art. Bringing together scholars from a wide range of disciplines and fields of study, including geography, anthropology, history, philosophy, and urban cultural tourism, art, and leisure studies, this volume discusses a range of case studies across different art forms and locales.

Life-Oriented Behavioral Research for Urban Policy Junyi Zhang, 2017-01-03 This book presents a life-oriented approach, which is an interdisciplinary methodology proposed for cross-sectoral urban policy decisions such as transport, health, and energy policies. Improving people's quality of life (QOL) is one of the common goals of various urban policies on the one hand, while QOL is closely linked with a variety of life choices on the other. The life-oriented approach argues that life choices in different domains, e.g., residence, neighborhood, health, education, work, family, life, leisure, and recreation, finance, and travel behavior, are not independent of one another, and ignorance of and inability to understand interdependent life choices may result in a failure of consensus building for policy decisions. The book provides evidence about behavioral interdependencies among life domains based on both extensive literature reviews and case studies covering a broad set of life choices. This work further illustrates interbehavioral analysis frameworks with respect to various life domains along with a rich set of future research directions This book deals with life choices in a relatively general way Thus it can serve not only as a reference for research but also as a textbook for teaching and learning in varied behavior related disciplines

Mobile Home Living Everett Sinclair, AI, 2025-02-22 Mobile Home Living explores the growing trend of portable housing examining its unique architecture and societal impact It addresses the increasing interest in alternative living arrangements such as minimalist living and eco friendly designs The book highlights how mobile homes challenge traditional notions of home offering flexibility and affordability Discover how mobile living connects to social science through sociological surveys and interviews The book delves into the historical roots of mobile homes from early trailers to modern technologically advanced designs It analyzes social and economic factors driving the adoption of nomadic lifestyles including financial constraints and the pursuit of location independent living The text progresses from introducing the concept and its history to showcasing architectural innovations and sustainable materials and finally examining the social impact of mobile living and its challenges This book adopts a balanced approach presenting both the advantages and disadvantages of mobile living while avoiding excessive jargon By incorporating case studies and real world examples the book provides valuable insights for architects urban planners sociologists and individuals considering mobile housing options It acknowledges the complexities of mobile living offering a comprehensive overview of its impact on individuals and society

Waltorp,Nathalie Ortar,Sarah Pink,2022-12-31 Everyday life as we knew it is increasingly challenged in a world of climate social health and political crisis Emerging technologies data analytics and automation open up new possibilities which have implications for energy generation storage and energy demand To support these changes we urgently need to rethink how energy will be sourced shared and used Yet existing approaches to this problem driven by engineering data analytics and capital are dangerously conservative and entrenched Energy Futures critically evaluates this context and the energy infrastructures stakeholders and politics that participate in it to propose plausible responsible and ethical modes of encountering possible energy futures Imagining anthropocene challenges emerging technologies and everyday life otherwise through empirically grounded studies opens up possible energy futures Energy Futures proposes and demonstrates a new critical and interventional futures oriented energy anthropology Combining the theories and methods of futures anthropology with the critical expertise and perspectives of energy anthropology creates a powerful mode of engagement which this book argues is needed to disrupt the dominant narratives about our energy futures. Its contributors collectively reveal and evidence through innovative ethnographic practice how new knowledge about imagined and possible energy futures can be mobilised in engagements with emerging technologies, anthropocene challenges and everyday realities. In doing so it brings together authors' analytical expertise and ethnographic evidence from the global south, north and places in between, generated through innovative methodologies including remote video and comic strip methods and documentary video practice as well as long term fieldwork.

Aspiring to the Good Life in Seoul Carolin Landgraf, 2021. This dissertation explores the values and practices of young middle class South Koreans and what it means for them to live a good life. Based on 12 months of ethnographic fieldwork, it attends to the pathways and life trajectories of young adults living, studying and working in Seoul, the country's economic, political, cultural and educational centre. Due to changing economic conditions, it appears to be increasingly difficult for young people today to reproduce middle class status. In public discourse, these difficulties are expressed in the terms 'Spec' or 'Give up' Generation. At the same time, young people are starting to question middle class lifestyles and values and turn to practices which emphasise different standards. The author illustrates how young adults negotiate middle class ideals by contextualising the values around four key themes: education, marriage, consumption and work. In doing so, she explores her interlocutors' thoughts and reflections about middle class values through a theoretical and methodological framework centred on ordinary ethics and the everyday use of money. This ethnography sheds light on the complex and heterogeneous ways young people in South Korea conceptualise and realise the good in their lives and it focuses attention on the explicitness of ethics and the relationship between money and values in these young Seoulites' everyday lives and social relations.
