Alzheimer's Disease Problems Prospects And Perspectives:

Alzheimer's Disease and the Family Joy S. Martyniuk, 1990 Alzheimer's Disease Harvey J. Altman, 2012 Alzheimer's disease is a primary neurodegenerative disease whose incidence and prevalence is rapidly approaching epidemic proportions. A major reason for this is that man is living longer than he has ever lived before and the likelihood of contracting the disease is significantly greater within the elderly portion of the population. The problem becomes even more acute in the light of recent estimates which predict that the number of people living beyond the age of 65 is expected to continue to increase. The impact of these statistics on the family and the health care industry in terms of time effort and cost are staggering. A recent report issued by the Michigan Task Force on Alzheimer's Disease and Related Conditions 1987 effectively underscores this last point. Each person with a dementing disease requires an average of seven years of care either at home or in a residential care facility. Care provided at home is estimated to cost about 12 000 annually for a total of 84 000 per person. This is a conservative figure however because many persons with dementia spend their last few years in a nursing home at an average cost of 22 000 per year and some spend from 10 to 15 years in a nursing home for a total cost of 220 000 to 330 000.

Alzheimer Disease D.L. Smith, Ezio Giacobini, J.M. Barton, Robert E. Becker, 2012-12-06 Since the apoE4 allele is a risk factor or susceptibility gene in late onset familial and sporadic AD the mechanism of disease expression may involve metabolic effects that are isoform specific. Isoform specific interactions of apoE therefore become critical in the mechanism of AD pathogenesis. Detailed characterization of the binding of the apoE isoforms with proteins and peptides relevant to the pathology of the disease may be critical in understanding disease pathogenesis. These critical isoform specific interactions of apoE may involve interactions with proteins and peptides in the defining neuropathologic lesions of the disease the neurofibrillary tangle and senile plaque Other possible critical isoform specific interactions include the mechanism of internalization intracellular trafficking and subsequent metabolism In addition differential post translational modifications of apoE isoforms may determine differences in metabolism contributing to the pathogenesis of the disease Oxidation of apoE may confer several isoform specific biochemically distinct properties Since 3A peptide binds apoE in the lipoprotein binding domain of the protein and not in the receptor binding domain apoE could target bound 3A4 peptide to neurons via the LRP receptor Internalization of the apoE/3A peptide complex into the cell by the same route as the apoE containing lipoproteins would result in incorporation into primary lysosomes and pH dependent dissociation The demonstration of apoE in the cytoplasm of neurons with isoform specific interactions of apoE with the microtubule binding protein tau demonstrated in vitro suggest additional testable hypotheses of disease pathogenesis
