Aging And Everyday Life:

, Aging and Everyday Life Jaber F. Gubrium, James A. Holstein, 2000-09-11 Aging and Everyday Life presents a balanced and realistic view of the aging experience The research in this book reveals that much if not most of the triumphs and trials experienced in later years are not unlike those confronted at other points in life Just like younger people the elderly experience both change and stability shedding old roles and entering new ones The process takes place in varied spheres of life the worlds of home and family work and friendship This thoughtful engaging text brings together twenty eight essays by leading researchers in social gerontology to explore the everyday aspects of aging Readers will come away viewing the elderly as people whose lives are as complex and diverse and therefore as nuanced as any Ageing in Everyday Life Stephen Katz, 2019-10-09 Applying interdisciplinary perspectives about everyday life to vital issues in the lives of older people this book maps together the often taken for granted aspects of what it means to age in an ageist society Part of the Ageing in a Global Context series the two parts address the materialities and the embodiments of everyday life respectively Topics covered include household possessions public and private spaces older drivers media representations dementia care health tracking dress and sexuality This focus on micro sociological conditions allows us to rethink key questions which have shaped debates in the social aspects of ageing International contributions including from the UK USA Sweden and Canada provide a critical guide to inform thinking and planning our ageing futures Everyday Life in South Asia Diane P. Ageing selves and everyday life in the north of England Cathrine Degnen, 2018-02-28 Seeking to explore what it means to grow older in contemporary Britain from the perspective of older people themselves this richly detailed ethnographic study engages in debates over selfhood and people's relationships with time Based on research conducted in a former coal mining village in South Yorkshire England Cathrine Degnen explores how the category of old age comes to be assigned and experienced in everyday life through multiple registers of interaction including that of social memory in a postindustrial context of great social transformation Challenging both the notion of a homogenous relationship with time across generations and the idea of a universalised middle aged self Degnen argues that the complex interplay of social cultural and physical attributes of ageing means that older people can come to have a different position in relation to time and to the self than younger people unseating normative conventions about narrative and temporality Narrative Imagination and Everyday Life Molly Andrews, 2014-02 Looks at how stories imagination come together in our daily lives influencing not only our thoughts about what we see and do but also our contemplation of what is possible and what our limitations are an even more comprehensive coverage of the major issues affecting memory attention language speech and other aspects of cognitive functioning The essential chapters from the first edition have been thoroughly revised and updated and new chapters have been introduced which draw in neuroscience studies and more applied topics In addition contributors were encouraged to ensure their chapters are accessible to students studying the topic for the first time This therefore makes the volume appealing as a textbook on senior undergraduate and graduate courses Towards HRI of Everyday Life Karolina Zawieska, Mohammad Obaid , Wafa Johal, Jessica Sorenson, Catharina Vesterager Smedegaard, Glenda Hannibal, 2025-10-03

Presently it is often assumed that at least in principle robots and social robots in particular have the potential to increase human well being across a wide range of sectors and application areas At the same time efforts to introduce such systems into our everyday environments have had only limited success and it is yet to be seen whether the impact of social robots on our daily lives professional and private will actually be beneficial Therefore there is a need to systematically address and study the long term use and presence of social robots in everyday environments where humans not only interact with robots but also have them integrated into the totality of their lived experiences in everyday life One of the main ways to investigate human engagement with social robots in everyday environments is through HRI studies conducted in the wild While such an approach has certainly been instrumental to and is increasingly used in HRI research we propose here to further expand the underlying theoretical and methodological frameworks to address the notion of everyday life The latter is viewed here as a useful concept and an umbrella term that allows us to address not only specific application domains for robots but also the continuity and totality of human lived experiences that emerge through long term engagement with social robots in everyday life contexts Placing social robots in everyday settings has often been an explicit goal for robot development however the notion of everyday life has yet to be systematically analysed and addressed in this context Therefore this Research Topic aims to bring together a wide range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary contributions to further develop the HRI domain The Neuropsychology of Everyday Life: Assessment and Basic Competencies David E. Tupper, Keith D. Cicerone, 2012-12-06

For a period of some fifteen years following completion of my internship training in clinical psychology 1950 1951 at the Washington University School of Medicine and my concurrent successful navigation through that school s neuroanatomy course clinical work in neuropsychology for me and the psychologists of my generation consisted almost exclusively of trying to help our physician colleagues differentiate patients with neurologic from those with psychiatric disorders In time experience led all of us from the several disciplines involved in this enterprise to the conclusion that the crude diagnostic techniques available to us circa 1945 1965 had garnered us little valid information upon which to base such complex differential diagnostic decisions It now is gratifying to look back and review the remarkable progress that has occurred in the field of clinical neuropsychology in the four decades since I was a graduate student In the late 1940s such pioneers as Ward Halstead Alexander Luria George Yacorzynski Hans Lukas Teuber and Arthur Benton already were involved in clinical studies that by the late 1960s would markedly have improved the quality of clinical practice However the only psychological tests that the clinical psychologist of my immediate post Second World War generation had as aids for the diagnosis of neurologically based conditions involving cognitive deficit were such old standbys as the Wechsler Bellevue Rorschach Draw A Person Bender Gestalt and Graham Kendall Memory for Designs Test The Body and Everyday Life Helen Thomas,2013-04-24 In recent years there has been an explosion of interest in the contemporary social study of the body which has raised important theoretical and methodological questions regarding traditional social and cultural analysis It has also generated corporeal theories that highlight the fluid shifting yet situated character of the body in society In turn these corporeal theories have implications for social relations in an era of new technologies and global market economies The Body and Everyday Life offers a lively and comprehensive introduction to the study of the body It uses case studies in performance practices to examine the key concepts methods and critical insights gained from this area It includes sections on ethnographies of the body bodies of performance performing gender the ageing performing body This book clearly illustrates the complex relationships that exist between the body society and everyday life and considers the negative and positive implications for the development of future socio cultural analysis in the field It will be an invaluable introduction for students of sociology body studies gender studies dance and performance and cultural studies Materialities of Age and Ageing: Concepts of a Material Gerontology Grit Höppner,Monika Urban,2019-06-18 In gerontological research the understanding of age and ageing changed in the last decade Biologic determined explanations no longer prevail in this research field Instead ideas of social constructivism are frequently used These ideas define the state of age and the process of ageing as social constructions steeping ageing in social and cultural assumptions ascriptions and expectations From a social constructivist perspective age and ageing are not just identified as dependency deficit and need for care as it was foremost accelerated from a biological perspective but with the life course and thus with individual lifestyles experiences attitudes and practices as well as institutional and economic structures A prominent social constructivist concept is doing age Similar to doing gender the concept of doing age assumes age as taking place in the form of a social praxis within everyday life interactions between people and thus in performances embedded in discourses through which social hierarchies and ideals proceed Despite the paradigm shift that social constructivist concepts enable in gerontological thinking they reveal their blind spot when it comes to the materiality of ageing and thus to fleshy sensual experiences human and non human ontologies and agencies Addressing these materialities of ageing brings up its own critique on definitions of ageing bodies and material environments This framing does not presume that age and ageing are solely products of human to human interactions or those of formative environments or of discourses Rather humans non humans and discourses become essential parts of ageing processes Such a material framing enables us new insights into forms of age and ageing and thus offers an opportunity for scholars to engage critically with materialities of age and ageing This eBook explores theoretical methodological and empirical concepts of such
