Professionals in geriatrics and gerontology, physical anthropology, forensic medicine, and the care and counseling of older persons will appreciate this discussion of the aging process as it affects the human skeleton. The author describes and explains the changing physiology, structure and functions of bone during advanced maturity in chapters that examine bone as tissue and organ, bone strength and architecture, the skull, and the postcranial skeleton. A final chapter reviews deteriorating conditions common to aging with emphasis on osteoarthritis and osteoporosis. Clear explanations throughout the text and reduced technical complexities enhance the appeal and readability of this book.
