Emerson, 2017-12-22 Excerpt from Agricultural Geology Geology and agriculture are closely related indeed it is due to geological processes that the hard rocks are broken down to soil and essential mineral substances set free which in some cases affect the physical qualities of the derived soil and in others serve as sources of plant food It therefore follows that the student of agriculture should have at least an elementary knowledge of the processes and principles of Geology with especial reference to the geology of soils and fertilizers With this object in view the late Professor Emerson prepared the accompanying work but unfortunately his untimely death prevented his seeing it through the press the labor of this devolving on Mrs Emerson The subject matter and mode of treatment are the outgrowth of some years of experience in teaching geology to agricultural students and while Professor Emerson prepared the work primarily for class room use it was also his hope that it might prove serviceable for reading and correspondence classes On this account he endeavored to make the treatment as untechnical as possible without sacrificing scientific accuracy Those who desire to follow the subject in greater detail can do so with the aid of the appended bibliographies and lists of soil and geological maps Professor Emerson also gave considerable attention to the selection of illustrations choosing them with the purpose of showing specific items on phenomena About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
