plains toward the end of the nineteenth century Mr Henlein describes the intricate pattern of agricultural activities which grew into a successful system of producing and marketing cattle the energetic upbreeding and extensive importations which created the great blooded herds of the Ohio Valley and the relations of the cattlemen with the major cattle markets An interesting part of this story is the chapter which tells how the cattlemen of the Ohio Valley between 1805 and 1855 drove their fat cattle over the mountains to the eastern markets and how these long drives like the more famous Texas drives of a later day disappeared with the advent of the railroads This well documented study is an important contribution to the history of American agriculture

The Investment Frontier John Denis Haeger, 1981-06-30 The American West did not grow in isolation from the East On the contrary New York financiers and other eastern entrepreneurs were crucial to America's western economic development providing the necessary capital and expertise to transform the West into a productive part of the nation's economy This thesis is powerfully demonstrated by John Denis Haeger in this study concerning the Old Northwest the present day states of Ohio Michigan Indiana Illinois and Wisconsin during the years 1815-1840 The result of years of research in manuscript collections and government documents the book provides a comprehensive picture of early land speculators examining their investments in farm lands town lots banks and transportation improvements as well as their influence on western businessmen and institutions It also explores their political and economic affairs on the East Coast since these matters dramatically affected the scope of their western investments Historians' generalizations about nonresident investors or eastern speculators have previously assumed a common type and business method when in fact easterners possessed varying economic goals and utilized different business strategies To demonstrate this Haeger compares and contrasts the promoter Charles Butler and the conservative speculators Isaac and Arthur Bronson key figures among New York's financial elite whose careers and strategies are for the first time described in detail The activities of these investment pioneers whose every move was calculated to return profits challenge the traditional images of westward expansion as a largely unplanned and spontaneous movement of people and capital

Overcoming Niagara Janet Dorothy Larkin, 2018-02-01 Analyzes the nineteenth century canal age in the Niagara Great Lakes borderland region as a transnational phenomenon In Overcoming Niagara Janet Dorothy Larkin analyzes the canal age from the perspective of the Niagara Great Lakes borderland between 1792 and 1837. She shows what drove the transportation revolution not the conventional story of westward expansion and the international metropolitan rivalry between Great Britain and the United States but a dynamic connection cooperation and healthy competition in a transnational borderland region. Larkin focuses on North America's three most vital waterways the Erie Oswego and Welland Canals. Canadian and American transportation leaders and promoters mutually sought to overcome the natural and artificial barriers presented by Niagara Falls by building an integrated interconnected canal system thus strengthening the borderland economy and propelling westward expansion market development and the Niagara tourist industry. On the heels of the Erie Canal's bicentennial in 2017 Overcoming Niagara explores the transnational nature of the canal age within the Niagara Great Lakes borderland and its impact on the commercial and cultural landscape of this porous region.

Bonds of Community Nancy Grey Osterud, 2018-08-06. Women held a central place in long settled rural communities like the Nanticoke Valley in upstate New York during the late nineteenth century. Their lives were limited by the bonds of kinship and labor but farm women found strength in these bonds as well. Although they lacked control over land and were second class citizens these rural women did not occupy a separate sphere. Individually and collectively they responded to inequality by actively enlarging the dimensions of sharing in their relationships with men. Nancy Grey Osterud uses a rich store of diaries letters and other first person documents in addition to public and organizational records to reconstruct the everyday lives of ordinary women of the past. Exploring large questions within the confines of a single community she analyzes the ways in which notions of gender structured women's interactions with their families and neighbors their place in the farm family economy and their participation in organized community activities. Rare turn of the century photographs of the rural landscape formal and informal family portraits and scenes of daily life and labor add a special dimension to Bonds of Community. It should find a ready audience among women's historians labor historians rural historians and historians of New York State.

Change in Agriculture Clarence H. Danhof, 1969. American agriculture changed radically between 1820 and 1870. In turning slowly from subsistence to commercial farming farmers on the average doubled the portion of their production places on the market and thereby laid the foundations for today's highly productive agricultural industry. But the modern system was by no means inevitable. It evolved slowly through an intricate process in which innovative and imitative entrepreneurs were the key instruments.
