Rule-Governed Behavior Steven C. Hayes, 2012-12-06 Animal learning and human learning traditions have been distinguishable within psychology since the start of the discipline and are to this day The human learning wing was interested in the development of psychological functions in human organisms and proceeded directly to their examination The animal learning wing was not distinguished by a corresponding interest in animal behavior per se Rather the animal learners studied animal behavior in order to identify principles of behavior of relevance to humans as well as other organisms The two traditions in other words did not differ so much on goals as on strategies It is not by accident that so many techniques of modern applied psychology have emerged from the animal laboratory That was one of the ultimate purposes of this work from the very beginning The envisioned extension to humans was not just technological however Many animal researchers B F Skinner most prominently among them recognized that direct basic research with humans might ultimately be needed in certain areas but that it was wise first to build a strong foundation in the controlled environment of the animal laboratory In a sense animal learning was always in part a human research program in development

Primary Understanding Kieran Egan,2012 Beginning with descriptions of the ways in which children make sense of their experience and the world such as fantasy stories and games Egan constructs his argument that constituting this foundational layer are sets of cultural sense making capacities reflected in oral cultures throughout the world Egan sees education as the acquisition of these sets of sense making capacities available in our culture and his goal is to conceptualize primary education in a way that over comes the dichotomy between progressivism and traditionalism attending both the needs of the individual child and the accumulation of knowledge
