McMinn,1991 Conserving Forest Biodiversity David B. Lindenmayer,Jerry F. Franklin,2013-04-10 While most efforts at biodiversity conservation have focused primarily on protected areas and reserves the unprotected lands surrounding those area the matrix are equally important to preserving global biodiversity and maintaining forest health In Conserving Forest Biodiversity leading forest scientists David B Lindenmayer and Jerry F Franklin argue that the conservation of forest biodiversity requires a comprehensive and multiscaled approach that includes both reserve and nonreserve areas They lay the foundations for such a strategy bringing together the latest scientific information on landscape ecology forestry conservation biology and related disciplines as they examine the importance of the matrix in key areas of ecology such as metapopulation dynamics habitat fragmentation and landscape connectivity general principles for matrix management using natural disturbance regimes to guide human disturbance landscape level and stand level elements of matrix management the role of adaptive management and monitoring social dimensions and tensions in implementing matrix based forest management In addition they present five case studies that illustrate aspects and elements of applied matrix management in forests The case studies cover a wide variety of conservation planning and management issues from North America South America and Australia ranging from relatively intact forest ecosystems to an intensively managed plantation Conserving Forest Biodiversity presents strategies for enhancing matrix management that can play a vital role in the development of more effective approaches to maintaining forest biodiversity It examines the key issues and gives practical guidelines for sustained forest management highlighting the critical role of the matrix for scientists managers decisionmakers and other stakeholders involved in efforts to sustain biodiversity and ecosystem processes in forest landscapes Management of the Red-cockaded Woodpecker and Its Habitat on National Forests in the Southern Region ,1995 The National Biological Diversity Conservation and Environmental Research Act United States. on simplifying systems producing wood and managing at the stand level to one concerned with understanding and managing complexity providing a wide range of ecological goods and services and managing across broad landscapes Creating a Forestry for the 21st Century is an authoritative and multidisciplinary examination of the current state of forestry and its relation to the emergent field of ecosystem management Drawing upon the expertise of top professionals in the field it provides an up to date synthesis of principles of ecosystem management and their implications for forest policy Leading scientists including Malcolm Hunter Jr Bruce G Marcot James K Agee Thomas R Crow Robert J Naiman John C Gordon R W Behan Steven L Yaffee and many others examine topics that are central to the future of forestry new understandings of ecological processes and principles from stand structure and function to disturbance processes and the movement of organisms across landscapes challenges to long held assumptions the rationale for clearcutting the wisdom of short rotations the exclusion of fire traditional tools in light of expanded goals for forest landscapes managing at larger spatial scales including practical information and ideas for managing large landscapes over long time periods the economic organizational and political issues that are critical to implementing successful ecosystem management and developing institutions to transform knowledge into action Featuring a 16 page center section with color photographs that illustrate some of the best on the ground examples of ecosystem management from around the world Creating a Forestry for the 21st Century is the definitive text on managing ecosystems It provides a compelling case for thinking creatively beyond the bounds of traditional forest resource management and will be essential reading for students scientists working in state federal and private research institutions public and private forest managers staff members of environmental conservation organizations and policymakers

General Technical Report SE ,1994      Conservation Across Borders Charles C. Chester,2012-02-13

Conservationists have long been aware that political boundaries rarely coincide with natural boundaries From the establishment of early peace parks to the designation of continental migratory pathways a wide range of transborder mechanisms to protect biodiversity have been established by conservationists in both the public and private sectors Conservation Across Borders presents a broad overview of the history of transboundary conservation efforts and an accessible introduction to current issues surrounding the subject Through detailed examinations of two initiatives the International Sonoran Desert Alliance ISDA and the Yellowstone to Yukon Initiative Y2Y the book helps readers understand the benefits and challenges of landscape scale protection In addition to discussing general concepts and the specific experience of ISDA and Y2Y the author considers the emerging concept of conservation effectiveness and offers a comparative analysis of the two projects The book ends with a discussion of the complex relationships among civil society governments and international borders By considering the history goals successes and failures of two divergent initiatives the book offers important insights into the field of transborder conservation along with valuable lessons for those studying or working in the field

Biodiversity and Conservation ,      Biological Diversity L. N. Petrov,2003 One of the

cornerstones of life's wonders is the vast array of species filling the planet. From plants to animals to humans, there is no shortage of beings to provide spice of life. Variety is said to be periodically. Scientists announce the discovery of a new form of life so it seems as if Earth is capable of producing new species just to keep us on our toes. At times the immense breadth of living things can even feel overwhelming as one pauses to ponder how numerically insignificant humans are when compared to the insect population. Given the biological diversity of the planet, it is incumbent upon humans to safeguard the natural beauty of the environment. To that end, conservation takes on special importance, necessitating the balancing of industrial expansion with preserving the flora and fauna surrounding us. This book is an important tool in understanding and researching the many different life forms spanning the globe. Collected here is a substantial and carefully selected listing of relevant literature on biological diversity and its conservation. Following this bibliography are author, title, and subject indexes to allow for further access to this information. The sheer bulk of the works about biological diversity can be so intimidating that a book such as this one becomes useful in sorting through the resources about the importance of life's variety.

Metapopulation Dynamics: Empirical and Theoretical Investigations Michael Gilpin, 2012-12-02. Metapopulation Dynamics: Empirical and Theoretical Investigations covers the 1989 proceedings of a metapopulation dynamics workshop held at Lammi Biological Station, Helsinki, Finland. It is divided into 18 chapters that cover various approaches to spatially structured population and community dynamics. After briefly discussing the history of metapopulation ideas and the major conceptual links, the book covers types of studies that have been conducted on single species and multispecies metapopulations. Then it examines the relationships between metapopulation dynamics, the equilibrium theory of island biogeography, and the dynamics of populations living in patchy environments. It further tackles practical issues and the links between metapopulation dynamics and landscape ecology and between metapopulation dynamics and conservation biology. Chapters 4 and 5 present structured models describing changes in the number of individuals within patches and an empirical evaluation of local extinction in metapopulation studies. The subsequent chapters discuss several aspects of metapopulation, including dispersal and connectivity, colonization, conspecific attraction, extinction, and isolation, and forest fragmentation. The latter chapters describe the concept of habitat fragmentation, the diversity and competition in metapopulations, the community collapse, and the effects of metapopulation studies in predator-prey systems.

Status and Management of Neotropical Migratory Birds Deborah M. Finch, Peter W. Stangel, 1993. General Technical Report RM., 1993. Nez Perce National Forest (N.F.), Hungry-Mill Timber Sales, 1996. Biodiversity David L. Hawksworth, Royal Society (Great Britain), 1995-11-30. Leading experts on the field of biodiversity examine examples from a wide range of organism groups. Their approaches include the latest molecular and phylogenetic techniques through to the selection of indicator data and aspects of sampling. This paperback edition has been published for students on biodiversity-related courses.
