

Linking soil biodiversity to policy

Links between global soil essential biodiversity variables (EBVs) (outer ring) are prioritized by the Soil Biodiversity Observation Network (SoilBON) and policy sectors (center) through the use of soil ecological indicators (inner ring; table S3). Thin lines correspond to links between EBVs and soil indicators; thicker lines refer to links between each soil indicator and specific policy sectors. The EBVs for soil systems are proposed as a holistic system approach (table S2), where soil organisms are intertwined with relevant soil chemical, physical, and functional properties, contributing to overall societal well-being. See table S1 for further information on links to specific policy targets and policies. See table S2 for details of the EBVs.
