Situation Cognition and Coherence in Personality Barbara Krahé, 2010-08-26 This 1990 volume was written to re examine the long standing controversy about consistency in personality from a social psychological perspective Barbara Krah reconsiders the concept of consistency in terms of the systematic coherence of situation cognition and behaviour across situations In the first part of the volume she undertakes an examination of social psychological models of situation cognition for their ability to clarify the principles underlying the perception of situational similarities She then advances an individual centred methodology in which nomothetic hypotheses about cross situational coherence are tested on the basis of idiographic measurement of situation cognition and behaviour In the second part of the volume a series of empirical studies is reported which apply the individual centred framework to the analysis of cross situational coherence in the domain of anxiety provoking situations These studies are distinctive in that they extend over several months and use free response data guaranteed to promote civil strife In rejecting a more workable version of tolerance today's professional educators risk civic disaster in an effort to achieve legitimacy for those they believe are unfairly marginalized stigmatized underappreciated and otherwise disdained Weissberg also addresses the issue of an ever expanding welfare state not only concerned with our material being but critically also with our mental health defined as beliefs about the vulnerable or victims in waiting women ethnic and racial minorities homosexuals and others He shows that this therapeutic state does not stop at imploring good thinking it goes much further and criminalizes evil thoughts as if thinking poorly of those at risk is tantamount to inflicting bodily harm There is substantial collateral damage in this quest for tolerance it facilitates intellectual sloth while raising anti intellectualism to an honored professional norm
