Edmund Brock, William Alexander

Constance And Faith:

Constance and Faith Victoria Routledge, 2004 CONSTANCE FAITH is set in Cumbria in the fictional town of Linton on the coast. It is here that Hannah grew up surrounded by her rather dotty grandmother, mother and aunts. As soon as she is able, she leaves for London, her own flat, a boyfriend, a career. But brokenhearted and unemployed, she returns to Linton a few years later to find the town and its people, their routines and preoccupations completely unchanged or so it appears on the surface. The guilt and apathy she feels at having gone home haunt her but gradually she is drawn into this rather genteel, slow-paced world and finds that it is anything but dull and set in its ways. The history of her own family of past generations, their secrets, love affairs, betrayals and intricate lives begin to emerge, not least through the stunning paintings that she undertakes to catalogue in the local manor house. And gradually we learn exactly why Hannah left Linton in the first place: not to fulfil her ambition for excitement and success in the big city but to escape disgrace in the eyes of her own family. Autobiography and the Psychological Study of Religious Lives Jacob Adrianus Belzen, 2008 This volume positions itself on the cutting edge of two fields in psychology that enjoy rapidly increasing attention: both the study of human lives and some core domains of such lives as religion and spirituality are high on the agenda of current research and teaching. Biographies and autobiographies are being approached in new ways and have become central to the study of human lives as an object of research and a preferred method for obtaining unique data about subjective human experiences. Ever since the beginning of the psychology of religion, autobiographies have also been pointed out as an important source of information about psychic processes involved in religiosity. In this volume, a number of leading theoreticians and researchers from Europe and the USA try to bring them back to this field by drawing on new insights and latest developments in psychological theory. The Epistemological Spectrum David K. Henderson, Terry Horgan, 2011-08-04 Henderson and Horgan set out a broad new approach to epistemology. They defend the roles of the a priori and conceptual analysis but with an essential empirical dimension. Transglobal reliability is the key to epistemic justification. The question of which cognitive processes are reliable depends on contingent facts about human capacities. Bertha Darley: or, Life in her husband's curacies. By L. H. B. L. H. B., 1858 Eating Identities Wenying Xu, 2018-03-31 The French epicure and gastronome Brillat-Savarin declared: Tell me what you eat and I will tell you who you are. Wenying Xu infuses this notion with cultural-political energy by extending it to an ethnic group known for its cuisines: Asian Americans. She begins with the general argument that eating is a means of becoming, not simply in the sense of nourishment but more importantly of what we choose to eat, what we can afford to eat, what we secretly crave but are ashamed to eat in front of others, and how we eat. Food as the most significant medium of traffic between the inside and outside of our bodies organizes, signifies and legitimates our sense of self and distinguishes us from others who practice different foodways. Narrowing her scope, Xu reveals how cooking, eating and food fashion Asian American identities in terms of race, ethnicity, gender, class, diaspora and sexuality. She provides lucid and informed interpretations of seven Asian American writers John Okada Joy Kogawa Frank Chin Li Young Lee David Wong Louie Mei Ng and Monique Truong and places these identity issues in the fascinating spaces of food hunger consumption appetite desire and orality Asian American literature abounds in culinary metaphors and references but few scholars have made sense of them in a meaningful way Most literary critics perceive alimentary references as narrative strategies or part of the background Xu takes food as the central site of cultural and political struggles waged in the seemingly private domain of desire in the lives of Asian Americans Eating Identities is the first book to link food to a wide range of Asian American concerns such as race and sexuality Unlike most sociological studies which center on empirical analyses of the relationship between food and society it focuses on how food practices influence psychological and ontological formations and thus contributes significantly to the growing field of food studies For students of literature this tantalizing work offers an illuminating lesson on how to read the multivalent meanings of food and eating in literary texts The Poetic Voices of John Gower Matthew W. Irvin, 2014 An examination of Gower's skilful deployment of personae in his works showing the parallels between the way he treats love and the way he treats politics Gower's use of the persona the figure of the writer implicated in the text is the main theme of this book While it traces the development of Gower's voice through his major works it concentrates on the dialogue of Amans and Genius in the Confessio Amantis It argues that Gower negotiates problems of politics and problems of love by means of an analogy between political ethics and the rules of fin amour Amans and Genius are both drawn from and occupied with amatory and ethical traditions and their discourse produces a series of attempts to find a coherent and rational union of lover and ruler The volume also argues that Gower's goal is poetic as well as political through the personae Gower's readers experience the pains and pleasures of erotic and social love Gower's personae voice potential responses to exemplary experience prompting readers to feel and to judge and moving them to become better lovers and better rulers Gower's analogy between fin amour and politics brings the affects of the lover to the action of government and suggests for both love and rule the moderation that brings peace and joy Matthew W Irvin is Assistant Professor in the Department of English and Chair of the Medieval Studies Program at Sewanee
