Surgeon General termed an epidemic of loneliness and isolation How do different aspects of college life help or hinder students ability to form deep connections In Making Keeping and Losing Friends How Campuses Shape College Students Networks sociologist Janice M McCabe shows that the way a college is structured whether students live in dorms or commute study abroad or stay close to campus have plentiful common areas for clubs to meet or not can either encourage or hinder the making of meaningful friendships Based on interviews with 95 students on three distinct campuses a small private college Dartmouth College a large public university University of New Hampshire and a non residential community college Manchester Community College McCabe captures a wide range of experiences and discovers how features of the campuses make it easier or harder for students to make and keep friends She shows how and why across all three institutions some students thrive in deep and lasting friendships with their peers As McCabe s research reveals we need to look at the structures of students networks the institutions they attend and the importance of their identities in these places if we are to truly uncover and address the loneliness epidemic facing today s young adults The Family Tree Keith Kelly,2022-08-13 Nebraska 1885 The McIntosh family is struggling to make ends meet at their farm on the Great Plains of Nebraska Slavery has ended and the country is in turmoil Their family roots grow deep focusing on the family patterns passed down to each generation Each generation of the family finds themselves exposed to different challenges as their society and human condition changes Follow the story of their family and join in their struggles and triumphs through late 19th century to 2017 Arkansas as the changing world and circumstances grow new branches to this family tree Toy Tips Marianne M. scenario This is a departure from the who had done it the convoluted romance the thriller the science fiction or other kinds of genre It is a human experience with a bit of everything humour sadness a bit of fantasy a bit of romance suspense and inspiration It s been difficult to look back and see what originally inspired me to write this No doubt people who know me will say it s based on similar experiences I ve had in my life as they say with a lot of writers I could also say it reveals a life I was not able to experience in my youth as well as a parenthood I ve been unable to have I was never in a situation these boys found themselves in during my youth I tended to be an observer of life rather than a participant So you could say the original idea for writing this book is born out this It could also be said a genre like this is mixture of psychology and philosophy with the character building involved in the boys at that sensitive age having to deal with the trauma but it was really a case of the boys their parents everyone else involved applying with some professional help a bit of common sense in what was thought to be a crisis turning out to be a mini crisis Liam and Shane in the end are neither heroes nor villains but are as human as you and I I didn t write this to set some ultraistic ideal or attempt to propose a method of bringing up children but to just portray how a middle class family would although not perfectly deal with a given set of circumstances The impact of the violent incident the story s centered round is increased by the somewhat ideal holiday experience This is what we kiwis call kiwiana that idealistic pastime of the family getting in the car and holidaying up the coast or to the lake and enjoying the scenery that is often only several hours drive from home But life was never meant to be all fun and pleasure as adolescent boys can quickly find out So you can enjoy this book because it s an uncomplicated saga of life itself
