Constructing Careers Pro Of Five Early Women Architects In British Columbia:

For the Record Joan Grierson, 2008-03-31 When Marjorie Hill graduated in 1920 as Canada's first girl architect she was entering a profession that had been established in Canada just 30 years earlier. For the Record the first history of women architects in Canada provides a fascinating introduction to early women architects presented within the context of developments in both Europe and North America. Profiles of the women who graduated from the School of Architecture at the University of Toronto between 1920 and 1960 are illustrated with photographs of their work and include archival material that has never before been published. The final chapter on contemporary women in architecture showcases contributions by leading women architects across the country from Halifax to Vancouver to Iqaluit. For the Record also provides current information on schools of architecture in Canada and includes a list of other resources to encourage young women who are thinking of pursuing careers in architecture.

Designing Women Annmarie Adams, Peta Tancred, Dr Peta Tancred, 2000-01-01 Women architects in Canada have reacted with ingenuity to the architectural profession's restrictive and sometimes discriminatory practices contributing major innovations in practice and design to the field.

The First American Women Architects Sarah Allaback, 2008 An invaluable reference covering the history of women architects.

Rethinking Professionalism Kristina Huneault, Janice Anderson, 2012 The first collection of scholarly essays on women and art in Canadian history.

Documentation Sur la Recherche Féministe, 2002

Constructing Careers Women in Architecture Exhibits Committee, 1996 The contributions of women architects in Canada have rarely been acknowledged or examined. Yet from the earliest days of European settlement in the Pacific Northwest women have been designing and building notable architectural works. Constructing Careers documents the inspiring lives of five of the first practicing women architects in British Columbia from the impressive building program undertaken by the nineteenth century missionary nun Mother Joseph to the influential modernist designs of Catherine Chard Wisnicki one hundred years later.

Building the West Donald Luxton, 2003 This award winning second edition shares the stories, discovers the aspirations and celebrates the accomplishments of early architects in British Columbia.

Disciplining Bodies in the Gymnasium Sherry McKay, Patricia Vertinsky, 2004-05-06 Architecture and design have been used to exert control over bodies across lines of class, gender and race. They regulate access to certain spaces and facilities, impose physical or psychological barriers and make particular activities possible for specific groups. Built in 1951 the War Memorial Gymnasium at the University of British Columbia is a prize winning example of modernist architecture. Although conceived to honour the dead of World War II it was far from being a neutral memorial and gymnasium for everyday athletes. This collection shows what the design, construction and shifting functions and spatial configurations of the building reveal about the values and aspirations of the university in the post war years. It shows how the building reflected the social and power relations among university administrators, architects and planners, faculty, staff and students and demonstrates how the culture and structure of the gymnasium responded to
