Construction Grammar In A Cross-Language Perspective Constructional Approaches To Language S:

Construction Grammar in a Cross-Language Perspective Mirjam Fried, Jan-Ola Östman, 2004-12-23 This volume gives an easily accessible yet comprehensive sophisticated and example rich introduction to Construction Grammar as it has been developed from the early 1980 s by Charles J Fillmore and his associates It also provides a succinct account of the historical and intellectual background of the model and shows how Construction Grammar can easily be applied to typologically very different languages and to a variety of language specific phenomena All of the contributors to the volume came out of the Fillmorean school at UC Berkeley and have worked consistently on applying and further developing the model in various domains of linguistic analysis The Thumbnail sketch by Fried stman is the only extensive introduction published so far to Fillmorean Construction Grammar

Romance Perspectives on Construction Grammar Hans C. Boas, Francisco González-García, 2014-08-15 The chapters in this book show how the different flavors of Construction Grammar provide illuminating insights into the syntax semantics pragmatics and discourse functional properties of specific phenomena in Romance languages such as Castilian Spanish French Romanian and Latin from a synchronic as well as a diachronic viewpoint The phenomena surveyed include the role of constructional meanings in novel verb noun compounds in Spanish the relevance of lexicalization for a constructionist analysis of complex prepositions in French the complementariness of fragments patterns and constructions as theoretical and explanatory constructs in verb complementation in French Latin and Spanish non constituent coordination phenomena e g Right Node Raising Argument Cluster Coordination and Gapping in Romanian and variable type framing in Spanish constructions of directed motion in the light of Leonard Talmy s 2000 typological differences of lexicalization between satellite framed and verb framed languages

Corpus-based Approaches to Construction Grammar Jiyoung Yoon, Stefan Th. Gries, 2016-09-08 This volume brings together empirical Construction Grammar studies to i promote cross fertilization between researchers interested in constructional approaches on various languages and ii further the growing trend towards empirically rigorous research that takes seriously a commitment not only to usage based theories but also to usage based methodologies Accordingly the chapters in this volume comprise a range of studies not based on synchronic contemporary English but include Dutch old English Italian and Spanish This volume also features studies from a wider range of statistical sophistication some chapters use more traditional frequency and attestation based approaches some chapters use inferential statistical techniques to explore lexically specific preferences and patterns in constructional slots and some chapters use multifactorial hypothesis testing techniques or multivariate exploratory tools to discover patterns in corpus data that a mere eye balling or simple statistical tools would not uncover Contrastive Studies in Construction Grammar Hans C. Boas, 2010-11-11 The papers in this volume provide a contrastive application of Construction Grammar By referencing a well described constructional phenomenon in English each paper provides a solid foundation for describing and analyzing its constructional counterpart in another language This approach shows that the semantic description including discourse pragmatic and functional factors of an English construction can be regarded as a first step towards a tertium comparationis that can be employed for comparing and contrasting the formal properties of constructional counterparts in other languages. Thus the meaning pole of constructions should be regarded as the primary basis for comparisons of constructions across languages; the form pole is only secondary. This volume shows that constructions are viable descriptive and analytical tools for cross linguistic comparisons that make it possible to capture both language specific idiosyncratic properties as well as cross linguistic generalizations.

Diachronic Construction Grammar Jóhanna Barðdal, Elena Smirnova, Lotte Sommerer, Spike Gildea, 2015-07-15 Construction Grammar as a framework offers a new perspective on traditional historical questions in diachronic linguistics and language change: how do new constructions arise? how should competition in diachronic variation be accounted for? how do constructions fall into disuse and how do constructions change in general formally and/or semantically and with what implications for the language system as a whole? This volume offers a broad introduction to the confluence of Construction Grammar and historical syntax and also detailed case studies of various instances of syntactic change modeled within Construction Grammar. The volume demonstrates that Construction Grammar as a theory is particularly well suited for modeling historical changes in morphosyntax and it also documents challenging new phenomena that require a theoretical account within any competing framework of syntactic change.

Constructionalization and Constructional Changes Elizabeth Closs Traugott, Graeme Trousdale, 2013-11 This book develops an approach to language change based on construction grammar in order to reconceptualize grammaticalization and lexicalization. The authors show that language change proceeds by micro steps involving every aspect of grammar including pragmatics and discourse functions. A new and productive approach to historical linguistics.

Modality and Diachronic Construction Grammar Martin Hilpert, Bert Cappelle, Ilse Depraetere, 2021-10-15 This volume explores how Diachronic Construction Grammar can shed new light on changes in a central and well researched domain of grammar namely modality. Its main goal is to show how constructional analyses can help us address some of the long standing questions that have informed discussions of modal expressions and their development and to illustrate the processes that are involved in these developments on the basis of data from languages such as English, Finnish, French, Galician, German and Japanese. The studies in this volume are organized around three interrelated topics. The first of these concerns the organization of modal constructions in a network. A second focus area of the studies in this volume concerns the developmental pathways that modal constructions follow diachronically. The third topic that ties the contributions of this volume together is the contrast between constructionalization and constructional change.

Grammaticalization meets Construction Grammar Evie Coussé, Peter Andersson, Joel Olofsson, 2018-05-23 Grammaticalization research has increasingly highlighted the notion of constructions in the last decade. In the wake of this heightened interest efforts have been made in grammaticalization research to more precisely articulate the largely pretheoretical notion of construction in the theoretical framework of construction grammar As such grammaticalization research increasingly interacts and converges with the emerging field of diachronic construction grammar This volume brings together articles that are situated at the intersection of grammaticalization research and diachronic construction grammar All articles share an interest in integrating insights from grammaticalization research and construction grammar in order to advance our understanding of empirical cases of grammaticalization Constructions at various levels of abstractness are investigated both in well documented languages such as Ancient Greek Latin Spanish German Norwegian and English and in less described languages such as Manchu and Mongolian

Give Constructions Across Languages Myriam Bouveret, 2021 This book deeply anchored into the Cognitive Construction Grammar theoretical movement proposes analyses of constructional phenomena which illustrate a grammar to lexicon continuum

Contexts and Constructions Alexander Bergs, Gabriele Diewald, 2009-12-17 This collection of original articles focuses on the function role and structure of linguistic and extralinguistic contexts in relation to the notion of constructions and in construction grammar It thus takes up and brings together two equally complex concepts of linguistics which both encompass structural as well as pragmatic and discourse oriented aspects Although both notions contexts as well as constructions have been under intense discussion in linguistics during the last decades with a wide span of research interests integrative studies of these aspects have been largely missing The eight papers presented in this volume explore the possibilities and risks of integrating contexts into particular constructions and construction grammar in general Topics range from particular language and construction specific problems such as the polysemy of modal verbs in relation to context sensitive constructions to general technical analyses and proposals including proposals for formalizing contextual features in constructional representations The volume will be of interest to scholars and advanced undergraduates interested in linguistic theory in general and in constructional pragmatic and discourse analytic approaches in particular

Constructicography Benjamin Lyngfelt, Lars Borin, Kyoko Ohara, Tiago Timponi Torrent, 2018-07-17 In constructionist theory a constructicon is an inventory of constructions making up the full set of linguistic units in a language In applied practice it is a set of construction descriptions a dictionary of constructions The development of constructicons in the latter sense typically means combining principles of both construction grammar and lexicography and is probably best characterized as a blend between the two traditions We call this blend constructicography The present volume is a comprehensive introduction to the emerging field of constructicography After a general introduction follow six chapters presenting constructicon projects for English German Japanese Brazilian Portuguese Russian and Swedish respectively often in relation to a frame net of the language In addition there is a chapter addressing the interplay between linguistics and language technology in constructicon development and a final chapter exploring the prospects for interlingual constructicography This is the first major publication devoted to constructicon development and it should be particularly relevant for those interested in construction grammar frame semantics lexicography the relation between grammar and

lexicon or linguistically informed language technology

Constructing Families of Constructions Francisco José Ruiz de Mendoza Ibáñez, Alba Luzondo Oyón, Paula Pérez Sobrino, 2017-07-26 Within Construction Grammar this volume moves away from a compartmentalized view of constructions with the aim of providing a more holistic description of grammar Thus the book brings together analyses that look at constructional families within the construction of such languages as English Spanish German Polish Croatian and Hungarian Part 1 focuses on how different analytical perspectives may be applied to comparable and or connected constructions with a view to enhancing our understanding of their similarities differences and relations Part 2 contributes to the state of the art in Construction Grammar in three ways i by reconciling aspects of various constructionist analyses ii by determining to what extent competing constructionist perspectives can offer more adequate approaches to specific analytical needs and iii by challenging central assumptions within Construction Grammar This book is expected to encourage further research into the anatomy of constructional families and their interrelations in all domains of constructional organization

Argument Structure in Usage-based Construction Grammar Florent Perek, 2015 This book investigates argument structure in English from a usage based perspective taking the view that the cognitive representation of grammar is shaped by language use and that crucial aspects of grammatical organization are tied to the frequency with which words and syntactic constructions are used

Constructions in Contact 2 Hans Christian Boas, Steffen Höder, 2021 This volume builds on previous constructionist work in particular Diasystematic Construction Grammar DCxG and extends its methodology and insights in three major ways

Construction Grammar Thomas Hoffmann, 2022-07-28 What do speakers of a language have to know and what can they figure out on the basis of that knowledge in order for them to use their language successfully This is the question at the heart of Construction Grammar an approach to the study of language that views all dimensions of language as equal contributors to shaping linguistic expressions The trademark characteristic of Construction Grammar is the insight that language is a repertoire of more or less complex patterns constructions that integrate form and meaning This textbook shows how a Construction Grammar approach can be used to analyse the English language offering explanations for language acquisition variation and change It covers all levels of syntactic description from word formation and inflectional morphology to phrasal and clausal phenomena and information structure constructions Each chapter includes exercises and further readings making it an accessible introduction for undergraduate students of linguistics and English language

Grammatical Constructions Mirjam Fried, Hans C. Boas, 2005-12-14 This volume brings into focus the conceptual roots of the notion grammatical construction as the theoretical entity that constitutes the backbone of Construction Grammar a unique grammatical model in which grammatical constructions have the status of elementary building blocks of human language By exploring the analytic potential and applicability of this notion the contributions illustrate some of the fundamental concerns of constructional research These include issues of sentence structure in a model that rejects the autonomy of syntax the contribution of Frame

Semantics in establishing the relationship between syntactic patterning and the lexical meaning of verbs and the challenge of capturing the dynamic and variable nature of grammatical structure in a systematic way All the authors share a commitment to studying grammar in its use which gives the book a rich empirical dimension that draws on authentic data from typologically diverse languages

Constructional Reorganization Jaakko Leino, 2008 The present volume consists of several novel and different applications of the Construction Grammar framework to areas such as language change variation and the internal organization of grammar The book is a collection of articles which bring together the framework of Construction Grammar and the constantly changing language system Thereby two main questions are addressed which are of paramount interest to linguists working with the notion of grammatical construction Where do constructions come from And how are the grammatical constructions in a given language organized to form the coherent whole which we refer to as grammar The book connects the latest developments in grammatical theory and Construction Grammar with empirical findings and data language specific research traditions and cross language issues It is aimed at linguists interested in Construction Grammar constructional approaches to grammar more generally language variation and change and the internal architecture of grammar

Construction Grammars Jan-Ola Östman, Mirjam Fried, 2005-02-28 The notion construction has become indispensable in present day linguistics and in language studies in general This volume extends the traditional domain of Construction Grammar CxG in several directions all with a cognitive basis Addressing a number of issues such as coercion discourse patterning language change the contributions show how CxG must be part and parcel of cognitively oriented studies of language including language universals The volume also gives informative accounts of how the notion construction is developed in approaches that are conceptually close to and relatively compatible with CxG Conceptual Semantics Word Grammar Cognitive Grammar Embodied Construction Grammar and Radical Construction Grammar

Nodes and Networks in Diachronic Construction Grammar Lotte Sommerer, Elena Smirnova, 2020-05-15 This volume brings together ten contributions by leading experts who present their current usage based research in Diachronic Construction Grammar All papers contribute to the discussion of how to conceptualize constructional networks best and how to model changes in the constructional network as for example node creation or loss node external reconfiguration of the network or in decrease in productivity and schematicity The authors discuss the theoretical status of allostructions homostructions constructional families and constructional paradigms The terminological distinction between constructionalization and constructional change is revisited It is shown how constructional competition but also general cognitive abilities like analogical thinking and schematization relate to the structure and reorganization of the constructional network Most contributions focus on the nature of vertical and horizontal links Finally contributions to the volume also discuss how existing network models should be enriched or reconceptualized in order to integrate theoretical psychological and neurological aspects missing so far

Construction Grammar across Borders Tiago Timponi Torrent, Ely Edison da Silva Matos, Natália

Sathler Sigiliano, 2022-07-15 Since its foundation in the 1980 s Construction Grammar has been crossing the traditionally imposed borders From superimposed levels of analysis to the lexicon grammar continuum the constructionist approach to language has been built by quoting Charles Fillmore the insistence on seeing specific grammatical patterns as serving given semantic and often pragmatic purposes and in the effort to construct a uniform theory capable of presenting both the simplest and most general aspects of language and the large world of complex grammatical structures In this volume five chapters derived from the plenary talks at the 9th International Conference on Construction Grammar provide a sample of the bridges the insistence and effort of construction grammarians have built in the past three decades with other analytical models namely Cognitive Grammar and Constructional Analysis perspectives Diachronic Construction Grammar and applications Language Pedagogy and Natural Language Understanding Originally published as special issue of Constructions and Frames 12 1 2020
