Construction Of Nuclear Power Plants:

Design and Construction of Nuclear Power Plants Rüdiger Meiswinkel, Julian Meyer, Jürgen Schnell, 2013-04-10

Despite all the efforts being put into expanding renewable energy sources large scale power stations will be essential as part of a reliable energy supply strategy for a longer period. Given that they are low on CO<sub>2</sub> emissions many countries are moving into or expanding nuclear energy to cover their baseload supply. Building structures required for nuclear plants whose protective function means they are classified as safety related have to meet particular construction requirements more stringent than those involved in conventional construction. This book gives a comprehensive overview from approval aspects given by nuclear and construction law with special attention to the interface between plant and construction engineering to a building structure classification. All life cycle phases are considered with the primary focus on execution. Accidental actions on structures, the safety concept and design and fastening systems are exposed to a particular treatment. Selected chapters from the German concrete yearbook are now being published in the new English Beton Kalender Series for the benefit of an international audience. Since it was founded in 1906 the Ernst Sohn Beton Kalender has been supporting developments in reinforced and prestressed concrete. The aim was to publish a yearbook to reflect progress in ferro concrete structures until as the book's first editor Fritz von Emperger 1862-1942 expressed it the tempestuous development in this form of construction came to an end. However the Beton Kalender quickly became the chosen work of reference for civil and structural engineers and apart from the years 1945-1950 has been published annually ever since.

Project Management in Nuclear Power Plant Construction IAEA (Corporate Author), 2012. Project management is a leadership function primarily concerned with the organization, coordination and control of large undertakings with the aim of achieving technical excellence by working to quality standards, optimizing the schedule and the supply chain and minimizing costs. Competent project management can reduce costs through more efficient work sequences, higher productivity, shorter activity durations and the parallel reduction of accumulated interest during construction of nuclear power plants. Based on past proven practices in Member States, this publication provides advice and guidance. Project Management in Nuclear Power Plant Construction International Atomic Energy Agency, 2012. This publication provides guidance on project management from the preparatory phase to plant turnover to commissioning of nuclear power plants. The guidelines and experiences described will enable project managers to obtain better performance in nuclear power plant construction.

Nuclear Power Plant Construction Activity, 1984. Construction Technologies for Nuclear Power Plants, 2011. This publication serves as a guide to the tools and steps that support plans for constructing nuclear power plants and consequently improve technical and management skills. It details information on the conventional and recently introduced advanced techniques and methods being used in different aspects of the construction phase of a project both in the nuclear industry as well as in non nuclear industries. Manufacturing Events, 2011 Interest in constructing new nuclear power plants is increasing worldwide Some countries are embarking on a nuclear programme for the first time while others have decided to re start construction of nuclear power plants after a hiatus of decades Starting new build is very demanding as much of the earlier experience and resources have progressively been lost from the nuclear industry Circumstances are quite different from 1970s when most of the plants currently operating were constructed Vendors had large experienced organisations ready to go ahead and had less need to rely on subcontractors In addition there was no shortage of skilled manufacturing capacity in the market and designs were often based on work done in similar ongoing or completed projects The aim of this study is to collect lessons learned from past and current construction projects and to raise recommendations for the regulators and the licensees The present document summarises the main trends and the main recommendations concerning construction commissioning and manufacturing This work is part of the European Clearinghouse on Nuclear Power Plant Operational Feedback NPP OEF activity carried out at the Joint Research Centre Institute for Energy JRC IE It describes the results of the analysis of the events related to the construction of new NPP and reported to the IAEA International Reporting System IRS database to the Licensee Events Report LER database of the US NRC and collected by the Working Group on the Regulation of the New Reactors WGRNR of the NEA
