Matériau, matière d'architecture soutenable Sophie Trachte, 2012-07-15 Cette thèse questionne les enjeux des matériaux dans la conception de l'architecture soutenable Le matériau de construction joue un rôle prépondérant en répondant des exigences de protection de confort et de performances techniques tout en favorisant un langage architectural et des sensations Mais le rôle des matériaux dépasse la notion d'image ou de performance il doit aujourd'hui répondre des exigences de préservation des ressources d'impact environnemental et sanitaire mais aussi des exigences de réutilisation ou de recyclage La question du choix est abordée suivant une approche prospective car elle tient compte la fois des impacts environnementaux et sanitaires scientifiquement avérés et prouvés globalement car elle tient compte de l'ensemble des tapes du cycle de vie des matériaux et du biment multidisciplinaire car elle développe autour du matériau de construction des aspects sensibles scientifiques historiques industriels techniques environnementaux sanitaires etc Cette vision holistique du matériau permet d'élargir le champ des considérations en conjuguant les trois matérialités d'un matériau matérialité visible intrinsèque et soutenable
