moving from moderate to low inflation almost always slow or costly This paper answers this question based on the Polish experience First reflecting the transition to a market economy Polish inflation has been marked by significant changes in relative prices Second as wage and price indexation takes root the inflationary effect of shocks to relative prices is magnified Third lagging structural reform including the failure to extend hard budget constraints to all sectors of the economy makes monetary policy less effective Reduced money supply growth with structural reform offers the best prospect for moving to low inflation

European Marketing Data and Statistics 1996, 1995-12

Prosperity for All Matthew Hilton, 2011-05-02 The history of consumerism is about much more than just shopping Ever since the eighteenth century citizen consumers have protested against the abuses of the market by boycotting products and promoting fair instead of free trade In recent decades consumer activism has responded to the challenges of affluence by helping to guide consumers through an increasingly complex and alien marketplace In doing so it has challenged the very meaning of consumer society and tackled some of the key economic social and political issues associated with the era of globalization In Prosperity for All the first international history of consumer activism Matthew Hilton shows that modern consumer advocacy reached the peak of its influence in the decades after World War II Growing out of the product testing activities of Consumer Reports and its international counterparts including Which in the United Kingdom Que Choisir in France and Test in Germany consumerism evolved into a truly global social movement Consumer unions NGOs and individual activists like Ralph Nader emerged in countries around the world including developing countries in Southeast Asia and Latin America concerned with creating a more equitable marketplace and articulating a politics of consumption that addressed the needs of both individuals and society as a whole Consumer activists achieved many victories from making cars safer to highlighting the dangers of using baby formula instead of breast milk in countries with no access to clean water The 1980s saw a reversal in the consumer movement's fortunes thanks in large part to the rise of an antiregulatory agenda both in the United States and internationally In the process the definition of consumerism changed focusing more on choice than on access As Hilton shows this change reflects more broadly on the dilemmas we all face as consumers Do we want more stuff and more prosperity for ourselves or do we want others less fortunate to be able to enjoy the same opportunities and standard of living that we do Prosperity for All makes clear that by abandoning a more idealistic vision for consumer society we reduce consumers to little more than shoppers and we deny the vast majority of the world's population the fruits of affluence
