Consumer Magazines Of The British Isles:

Consumer Magazines of the British Isles Sam G. Riley, 1993-02-16 This book provides a brief introduction to over 50 British magazines including Country Life The Economist Smash Hits and New Scientist A brief history of each title is given plus information on circulation and subject matter Encyclopedia of Contemporary British Culture Peter Childs, Michael Storry, 2013-05-13 Boasting more than 970 alphabetically arranged entries the Encyclopedia of Contemporary British Culture surveys British cultural practices and icons in the latter half of the twentieth century It examines high and popular culture and encompasses both institutional and alternative aspects of British culture It provides insight into the whole spectrum of British contemporary life Topics covered include architecture pubs film internet and current takes on the monarchy Cross referencing and a thematic contents list enable readers to identify related articles The entries range from short biographical synopses to longer overview essays on key issues This Encyclopedia is essential reading for anyone interested in British culture It also provides a cultural context for students of English Modern History and Comparative European Studies

Framing China Ariane Knüsel, 2016-04-15 Framing China sheds new light on Western relations with and perceptions of China in the first half of the twentieth century In this ground breaking book Ariane Knüsel examines how China was portrayed in political debates and the media in Britain the USA and Switzerland between 1900 and 1950 By focusing on the political economic cultural and social context that led to the construction of the particular images of China in each country the author demonstrates that national interests anxieties and issues influenced the way China was framed and resulted in different portrayals of China in each country The author's meticulous analysis of a vast amount of newspaper and magazine articles commentaries editorials cartoons and newsreels that have previously not been studied before also focuses on the transnational circulation of images of China While previous publications have dealt with the occurrence of the Yellow Peril and Red Menace in particular countries Framing China reveals that these images were interpreted differently in every nation because they both reflected and contributed to the discursive construction of nationhood in each country and were influenced by domestic issues cultural values pre existing stereotypes pressure groups and geopolitical aspirations

Current British directories , 1999 Tatler's Irony Sallie McNamara, 2018-05-25 This book discusses Tatler a monthly glossy magazine aimed at the wealthiest groups in British society to consider how it addresses social change The volume addresses specifically the period from 1997 the year New Labour was elected under Tony Blair up to 2010 when the Conservative party and David Cameron came in to power Sallie McNamara scrutinizes how the magazine negotiates ideas of Britishness class gender and national identity in a changing social political economic and cultural climate Additionally she explores the magazine's humorous approach and looks at how that distinctive address can potentially lead to misinterpretation The British class system has seen many challenges over the period of the magazine's history and this study expertly grapples with exactly how Tatler has maintained its audience in a continually changing social environment

Feminist Realism at the Fin de Siècle Molly Youngkin, 2007 Molly Youngkin takes on a major literary problem of the turn of the century: Was the transition from the Victorian novel to the modern novel enabled by antirealist or realist narrative strategies? To answer this question, Youngkin analyzes book reviews that appeared in two prominent feminist periodicals circulated during the late Victorian era: Shafts and The Woman's Herald. Through reviews of the works of important male and female authors of the decade—Thomas Hardy, Sarah Grand, George Gissing, Mona Caird, George Meredith, M. N. Dowie, George Moore, and Henrietta Stannard—these periodicals developed a feminist realist aesthetic that drew on three aspects of woman's agency: consciousness, spoken word, and action, and emphasized corresponding narrative strategies: internal perspective, dialogue, and description of characters' actions. Still, these periodicals privileged consciousness over spoken word and action, and by doing so encouraged authors to push the boundaries of traditional realism and anticipate the modernist aesthetic. By acknowledging the role of the woman's press in the development of the novel, this book revises our understanding of the transition from Victorianism to modernism, which often is characterized as antirealist. Late Victorian authors working within the realist tradition also contributed to this transition, particularly through their engagement with feminist realism. Youngkin deftly illustrates this transition and, in so doing, proves that it cannot be attributed to antirealist narrative strategies alone.

Revolutions from Grub Street Howard Cox, Simon Mowatt, 2014-03 Based on extensive new research, the book provides a unique overview of one of Britain's most successful creative industries: consumer magazines, from its seventeenth-century origins into the digital age. It charts the revolutions that took place in both technology and industrial organization and the response to these changes.

Churchill as Home Secretary Charles Stephenson, 2023-02-22 There can be few statesmen whose lives and careers have received as much investigation and literary attention as Winston Churchill. Relatively little, however, has appeared which deals specifically or holistically with his first senior ministerial role that of Secretary of State for the Home Office. This may be due to the fact that of the three Great Offices of State which he was to occupy over the course of his long political life, his tenure as Home Secretary was the briefest. The Liberal Government of which he was a senior figure had been elected in 1906 to put in place social and political reform. Though Churchill was at the forefront of these matters, his responsibility for domestic affairs led to him facing other major challenges. Departmentally, this was a time of substantial commotion on the social front with widespread industrial and civil strife. Even given that Home Secretaries never do have an easy time, his period in office was thus marked by a huge degree of political and social turbulence. The terms Tony Pandy and Peter the Painter perhaps spring most readily to mind. Rather less known is his involvement in one of the burning issues of the time, female suffrage, and his portrayal as the prisoners' friend in terms of penal reform. Aged 33 on appointment and the youngest Home Secretary since 1830, he became empowered to wield the considerable executive authority inherent in the role of one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and he certainly did not shrink from doing so. There were, of course, commensurate responsibilities, and how he shouldered them is worth examination. Frances Molloy Jennifer M. Jeffers, 2025-09-30

Frances Molloy The Portrait of a Postwar Northern Irish Woman Writer is the story of Ann McGill Brady, the woman who wrote herself into the history of the Irish novel as Frances Molloy. It is also the story of a poor, uneducated Catholic female in Northern Ireland in the 1960s; she had few choices, and they were the traditional ones: marriage or work, a dead-end job. For young Molloy, marriage was out of the question because she did not want to replicate her own mother's life. Molloy believed that God did have a higher plan for her life, and she believed that she would better serve the world as a nun than as a seamstress in a pajama factory. Frances Molloy gives a voice to the poverty, prejudice, and violence the Catholic community endured in Northern Ireland under the Stormont Government in the post-World War II era. While identity is always at the forefront of society in Northern Ireland, there is little record of the Catholic female bound by tradition and poverty in the North. A group without a history is a group without an identity; no one has yet written a history of the poor Northern Irish Catholic female in the latter half of the twentieth century. Frances Molloy was a Catholic woman in a sectarian state, and her story includes discrimination, segregation, and unjust incarceration in Northern Ireland in the latter half of the twentieth century. History of the Mass Media in the United States Margaret A. Blanchard, 2013-12-19 The influence of the mass media on American history has been overwhelming. History of the Mass Media in the United States examines the ways in which the media both affects and is affected by U.S. society. From 1690, when the first American newspaper was founded, to 1995, this encyclopedia covers more than 300 years of mass media history. History of Mass Media in the United States contains more than 475 alphabetically arranged entries covering subjects ranging from key areas of newspaper history to broader topics such as media coverage of wars, major conflicts, press freedom, court cases, and legislation, and the concerns and representation of ethnic and special interest groups The editor and the 200 scholarly contributors to this work have taken particular care to examine the technological legal legislative economic and political developments that have affected the American media
